That was an anxious crowd which I past in manipulating the affairs of the republican party, have lost their cunning. Had they remained true to Mr. Blaine they could have won the fight, but their mammoth game of bunco, when discovered, was balked, and the rebound buried each one of them almost out of sight. Quay has even left the republican national committee, and has announced that he will have no official connection whatever with the was announced that roll was being the next campaign. the republicans, by their own admission are in very bad shape. The Indiana Situation.

In Indiana, however, they appear to be at least harmonious. The little Fort Wayne club here shouting for Blaine has not one hundred republican voters in it, and these fellows will, of course, go to Harrison as against any democratic nominee. Harrison should carry his own state. Indeed, it will take very hard work and a strong candidate and the expenditure of much money on the part of the democrate to get it away from him.

The anti-Harrison leaders sat up all last night figuring out a combination to defeat the president. They found the votes were against them and their only hope was to spring a game. As a consequence they formulated a plan to put Blaine or a dark horse through the convention. This morning McKinley was selected as the dark horse who could probably draw the largest vote on the first ballot. He did draw well, but his draft was all from Blaine. He divided the Maine man's vote with him, but could not draw a single delegate from Harrison Had the Delegates.

In the convention hall there was much enthusiasm for Blaine when Senator Wol-cott made his nominating speech, one for eloquence and splendid delivery not equaled by any in this convention. The audience was very enthusiastic, but it was at once seen that the majority of the delegates de-clined to join in the cheering. When Thompson, of Indiana, nominated Harri-son, the delegates applauded and the great mass of spectators sat silent. It was evident then to the audience that Harrison had the fight, and it attempted to change the result by a show of wild enthusiasm. The most remarkable and spectacular scene ever witnessed in an American conventio occurred just at the close of the speech of Mr. Eustis, of Minnesota.

Mrs. Lake's Display. Sitting in the rear of the chairman of the convention was Tom Reed, surrounded by a bevy of pretty women. Immediately be Lake, a beautiful young brunette with face beaming with animation, beauty and intelligence. As the applause started for Blaine, she stood upon her chair just behind Reed and waved her parasol. With an air of commanding enthusiasm, she shouted . "Blaine! Blaine!" Her appearance and eagerness and enthusiasm fired the convention as nothing else on earth could have done. Applause and cheers burst forth like the explosion of mine after mine. With her closed parasol as a baton, she led the convention into a whirl-wind of enthusiasm that was simply amazing. Like a queen of all the earth, she stood upon the chair overlooking the hall, and simply swayed the great convention by her magnetic beauty to suit her own will. Clad in a perfect fitting dress, with an im perial cloak of ecru lace, draped tastily about her shoulders, a tall, black lace hat trimmed in golden lace hat trimmed in golden rod,she formed the picture above Tom Reed's broad shoulders and moonlike face which would have inspired an audience with en-thusiasm for anything she might have advocated. For full twenty minutes the thou-sands of people in the convention yelled, following her will as a military company would the command of its captain. But her work was too late. Had she made the same move the first day of the convention the result might have been different. After every speech the Blaine audience yelled for their favorite. They waved plumes all over the hall and yelled and cheered like demons. Tom Reed and the beautiful Mrs. Lake led the band of enthusiasts. The Pair Were Amazed.

When the vote was taken, however, the two most disappointed people in the convention were Tom Reed and his companion. They were simply amazed at the result to all outward appearances. They had no idea that it would result as it did. Harrison had sufficient to nominate before the first roll call was completed. Texas gave him the last votes to round off his nomination. When that was expressed there nation. When that was announced there was applause for just a moment, then the convention seemed enveloped in a cold, clammy atmosphere. It appeared almost as if they were sorry they had done it. No delegate even remembered and no one seemed to care to make it unanimous. Mr. McKinley, the chairman, had to do that himself. The convention took a recess until tonight. There was no yelling, no men-tion of Harrison's name, even as the delegates came out.

Indeed the lack of any enthusiasm whatever was surprising.

A Story Could Be Told:

"When the inside history of this convention leaks out, as it inevitably will," said a member of the national committee tonight, "there will be lots of campaign material for the democratic press."

The average price paid for votes in the committee on credentials was $500, but in one instance $2,000 was paid, and the recipient voted as he promised. He got scared and gave the money back. There has been over $100,000 expended in Harrison's inerest within the past forty-eight hours. To the Convention.

Later in the evening before he left the city, Mr. Blaine sent this communication to the convention at Minneapolis: The resolution, energy and persistence which marked the proceedings of the convention at Minneapolis will, if turned against the common foe, win the election in November. All minor differences should be merged in the duty of every republican to do all in his power to elect the ticket this day nominated by the national republican convention. JAMES G. BLAINE. Whitelaw Reid's Nomination. The general opinion here tonight is that Whitelaw Reid will be a very heavy weight for Harrison to drag along with him on the ticket. The printers of New York sent a petition, which reached here today, protesting against his nomination, and i s announced that every printer in New York state will vote against the republican ticket with Reid on it. The printers in the other states, it is believed, will do likewise, E. W. B.

THE LAST EXPIRING KICK

Minneapolis, June 10.—There is every in-Minneapolis, June 10.—There is every indication this morning that the leaders of the Blaine forces are still undaunted, and that a sharp and bitter contest is in prospect. When dawn broke over the convention this morning, it found the leaders of the two great factions of the republican party marshaling their forces for a decisive contest for political supremacy.

The night had been a sleepless one to nearly all of those who assume to direct the secret conferences.

The Fight for Supremacy.

The Fight for Supremacy. The Fight for Supremacy.

The Harrison people felt that if they could hold their own, victory was assured. The Blaine people were convinced that if the administration candidate was to be defeated, every straggler was to be rallied, and a supreme effort be made to break the forces of the administration. The effect of the last vote in last night's convention was to imbue the Harrison leaders with more confidence and to convince the rank and file of the Blaine boomers that the man from Maine was not to be selected with that popular acclaim which had been so fervently contemplated.

LOOKING FOR A DARK HORSE.

How Ohio Came to Unite Upon Bill McKinley as the Man.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Platt, Wolcott, Clarkson, Teller, Beutelle, Manly and others this morning held a conference. They had figured it that they would be able to beat President Harrison, but later they found their plans disarranged, and were much less confident of their ability to carry out their plans. Their scheme in part was to consolidate Ohio on McKinley, Michigan on Alger, and if possible, to get away some of Harrison's strength in Massachusetts and Iowa. In Ohio great work was done. Foraker, at first, would not go into any or Harrison's strength in Anasacous and Iowa. In Ohio great work was done. Foraker, at first, would not go into any combination on any one else than Blaine. He said that he had not come for the special purpose of defeating Harrison, but to nominate Blaine, and he was disposed to stick to him. This morning, however, there was a decided disposition to concentrate the strength on McKinley.

At 10:30 o'clock, one of Governor Foraker's lieutenants said that the governor would now do whatever was right and necessary, first to defeat the president, and afterwards to nominate a new man. He said that the Ohio delegates were disposed to get together and bury personal differences, and for the glory of the state to unite and name a man they believed to be a winner. They had met, and as they sometimes did in Ohio, had come pretty close together.

sometimes did in Ohio, had come pretty close together.

Meanwhile the Harrison managers were actively working to counteract the movement and Senator Cullom, it was said, had done particularly good work in the committee. Some say the Harrison managers were superstitious about voting on Friday, and a proposition was made and seriously entertained to delay the balloting until after midnight. This objection was urged and after a conference General Sewell, of New Jersey, said Harrison would not delay the convention, but would go right along and vote.

LOOKING OVER THE FIELD. Bo th Sides Out Hustling for Favorable Prob

Bo th Sides Out Hustling for Favorable Probabilities

Minneapolis, June 10.—The morning opened with the Harrison people still confident, but the Blaine managers are none the less determined. Chairman Clarkson said that he had received a large number of telegrams this morning from prominent men throughout the country, who had heretofore been urging him to harmonize the opposition in support of the president, requesting him now to make every effort to bring about a reconciliation of the warring factions by a union on some man who would be satisfactory to both elements. McKinley, Rusk, Reed and Allison had all been suggested in these telegrams.

One effect of last night's fight was visible on all sides today, and that was that the bitterness of feeling engendered in the contests in the manifestations of the past week had grown to proportions which, in a measure, excite the apprehension of the more conservative republicans.

The Harrison people, of course, were inclined to be considerate. It is the rank and file of the Blaine forces who, mourning and refusing to be comforted, concluded by uttering defiance to the administration candidate. Just how lasting this feeling will be, of course, no one can say.

The Bay State in Consultation.

The Bay state in Consultation.

The Massachusetts state delegation is holding a conference this morning, and the greatest anxiety is evinced as to its probable results. There is no doubt that a portion of the delegation will favor casting the vote of the state for some compromise candidate, but it seems quite improbable that any Harrison action can be agreed upon. Various other state delegates, or a majority of the delegates there are also holding impromptu conferences, and the air is full of rumors of all kinds. McKinley appears to be the man most looked to as the compromise candidate. The Blaine people have taken particular pains to give out the statement that they propose to stand by their candidate, and there are indications that a strenuous attempt is being made to preserve a solid front.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The toppling over of the presidential booms had a strange parallel today, witnessed by all the great crowds of spectators and delegates just as they entered the convention hall. The hundred-foot wonderful design in barrels that stood near the main entrance was dashed to pieces and ruined hopelessly. A small cyclone, or something very like it, had done the work. The wreck, as it dangled in mid air, presented an uncanny appearance, which, with the fact that today was Friday, led to talk about hoodooism and other similar things of ill omen that in weaker moments are the dread of certain classes of politicians.

At 11 o'clock, the hour set for assembling, the results of the long night session and anxious caucuses were plainly visible in the haggard faces of the delegates who had put in an appearance.

McKinley, prompt to a minute in taking the chair, was for a third successive day accorded the first round of cheers. Notwithstanding the trying responsibilities through which he had passed, McKinley seemed, in comparison with the majority of those before him, relatively fresh and vigorous, ready to hold the balance firmly and effectively in the greater battle that promised to characterize the day's proceedings.

The clergyman selected to deliver the opening prayer was a life-long, stanch republican, but in person bore a remarkable resemblance to the famous democrat and particular friend of Grover Cleveland—General Bragg, of Wisconsin. The preacher's reputation, however, hinged on a far more solid foundation than his facial truits. He was the Rev. Wayland Hoyt, of Minneapolis, whose name has long been probably as familiar to Baptists throughout the country as that of any other minister in their powerful denomination. As he sat waiting for the moment when he should lift his voice in supplication, he attracted as much attention from the audience as leaders like Depew, causing informal but general talk all over the floor.

A Prayer That the Nominee Should Be the Chosen of the Lord.

Minneapolis, June 10.—At 11 o'clock Clayton, Boutelle, Burrows of Michigan, and others of both ides, seemed by their movements desirous of all the time possible to get their forces ranged into something like fighting lines. Platt was one of the few bigger men who remained outwardly impassive. The hurrying backward and forward, whispering and combination making had its larger storm centers near the Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Indiana and Kansas delegations. Kansas delegations.

McKinley ordered the aisles cleared, but some sort of order was established. Dr. Hoyt prayed that the man to be selected as the standard bearer might be one chosen by the Lord and a man after His own heart. A little flutter of appliance greated the report by and a man after ris own heart. A fittle flutter of applause greeted the report, by Senator Quay, that Hon. David Martin, of Philadelphia, had been selected by the Pennsylvania delegation as a member of the national committee. Martin was Quay's candidate and his selection indicated the continued sway of the senator of the Keystone state. A moment later Chairman Mc-Kinley said:

"Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, reports on the part of those opposed to the majority reports, that they will make no further opposition to its adoption."

Prolonged cheers followed this announcement of tacit acknowledgement of defeat from the opponents of the majority report of the credential committee, and their report was adopted by acclamation.

A separate vote was demanded by the Mormon contesting delegates of Utah, on their case, but the majority report was adopted, and the Mormons were declared ineligible. On request of Chairman Duffield, the Alger manager, the Michigan delegation was allowed to retire for fifteen minutes for consultation, no nominating speeches to be made until after the return.

At this juncture a magnificent bouquet was presented to Chairman McKinley, from some unknown donor. The incident was freely applauded.

Mrs. Ellen Foster Indulges in the Privilege of Talking.

Minneapolis, June 10.—A communication from the Woman's Republican Association of the United States, presented by ex-Senator Miller, of New York, was read amid applause, and the association was recognized as an auxiliary to the republican party. Mrs. Ellen Foster, president of the association, was invited outo the stand, and the unusual spectacle of a woman addressing a republican convention was witnessed. Mrs. Foster's speech was well received and her declaration "that not every one who cries reform is a reformer," provoked enthusiastic applause. The assertion that she loved Massachusetts, the land of her birth, and Iowa, the land of her home, was wildy applauded by the delegates from both these states. But the heighth of enthusiasm was reached when she declared that the state grander than either Massachusetts or Iowa, the grandest of all the galaxy of states, was the state of Wyoming, where women had been recognized as the political equals of man.

women had been recognized as the pointral equals of man.

The Alabama state contestees reported that there was disagreement over the selection of a national committeeman, and for a few minutes it seemed that the rows of Alabama were once more to be brought before the convention.

"If there is no objection," said Chairman McKinley, "the Alabama delegation will be granted time to correct their arithmetic." (Laughter.)

THE PRESENTATION OF CANDIDATES.

some Caged Orators About to Be Turned Minneapolis, June 10.—"The regular or-ler," resumed the chairman, "is the presentation of candidates for president of the United States." (Cheers.)

It was then decided that the roll of the was reached Senator Walcott, of the siler state, arose. Instantly the Blaine men burst into wild and enthusiastic cheers, and all doubt as to the presentation of the name of James to the presentation of the name of James G. Blaine was now removed.

Senator Walcott spoke as follows:
Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: The republicans of the west sometimes differ with the republicans of the east as to what is wented. On this occasion there is remarkable unanimity between the genuine republicans of the west and the genuine republicans of the east as to who is needed, and his name is Blaine.

The name of the Maine statesman seemed to be one to conjure with, for when Senator Walcott pronounced it, one great universal howl went up from the audience, and was taken up by a large number of delegates, New York particularly being very effusive. Hats and handkerchiefs as well as fans and umbrellas were called into use, and the noisy galleries assisted in the uproar with their feet. The demonstration lasted about sixty seconds, and when it concluded, Senator Walcott continued as follows:

The greatest republican now living suf-

The greatest republican now living suffered defeat eight years ago, because the party which he led and honored, was torn with discord, and because fraud triumphed. We meet today to undo that wrong, and to present to our uncrowned leader the pledge of our unswerving devotion and assurances of a victory in November that will obliterate in his heart and ours the memory of past defeat.

The speaker at this point was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers, many of the delegates standing up and waiving their handkerchiefs and flags, and the audience generally yelling loudly.

With our reputation for fealty and devotion, it is a matter of comparative indifference who shall be chosen to lead the democratic hosts, but we trust they will again renominate their prophet of tariff reform, in order that we may demonstrate how short a life has slander and calumny, that our country may repair the wrong of 1884, and that we may stamp with the seal of final disapproval a policy which could lead only to impoverishment at home, and which brought us only contempt and dishonor abroad.

The welfare of our beloved party, Mr. Chalrman, is of infinitely greater importance than the nomination or vindication of any other within its ranks, and when the roll of states is called I believe it will be remembered that the obligations of office are repaid solely by the faithful performance of its duties, and that manhood and independence are not bartered among good men for the emoluments and honors of public station.

Our candidate, Mr. Chalrman, has never been president of the United States.

"He will be."

The speaker was again interrupted, while the audience turned itself loose, and many delegates applauded loudly.

But if he has not yet occupied that high office, he has, by his devotion to his party, made republican presidents possible, and he has guided two admi

The best gifts of the world are not to those who seek them. (Applause.) For my part, I rejoice that the opportunity is given me to cast my vote for the nominee who seeks everything for his country and nothing for his country and nothing for hisself—(cheers)—and the same devotion to the nation's welfare which has guided him in his public life for nearly a generation insures his acceptance of any duty which this convention may impose upon him. (Applause.) For many months there has been apprehension in the public mind respecting his health and strength. It is gratifying to be able to state that the fears which moved us were groundless. For his country's sake and his own, we could wish that he were again the young and ardent leader whose light has flared in countless battles, and that his youth could be renewed like the eagle's. (Cheers.) And so, Mr. Chairman, in the hour when victory is at hand, we turn to the intrepid leader who has so shaped his party policy which has lifted it above danger of further defeat, and to those of us who belong to the younger elements of the party, who are content to follow, and not to lead, and who ask only to bear their share of the burden and heat of the day, he stands our ideal—our inspiration. With a loving faith and trust that Providence will long spare him to a people whose grateful homage he has earned, and pleaded by the produced by the produce whose grateful homage he has earned, and whose affectionate devotion he possesses, we pledge our unfaltering and loyal support to James G. Blaine.

As the speaker closed the followers of the plumed knight gave a spontaneous burst of applause, which lasted, however, but a few moments, but it was renewed by a long drawn-out calliope howl from men of lungs in the lower corner of the hall, which was answered with cries of "Blaine, Blaine," rison.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 10.—At the conclusion of Senator Wolcott's speech the call of states was resumed, and when Indiana was reached, the venerable Richard W. Thompson, ex-secretary of the navy, arose. Always a favorite in republican conventions the distinguished Indianian rising to nominate Harrison, became the temporary idol of the convention. In response to the popular demand he took the platform, and when he skillfully alluded to Wolcott's speech by saying the candidate whom he would nominate did not seek elevation by the detraction of any other great republican, the sentiment elicited cheers of approval.

the detraction of any other great republican, the sentiment elicited cheers of approval.

"I nominate for the presidency of the United States," he concluded, "the warrior statesman, Benjamin Harrison."

A counter-demonstration, that so far as the delegates were concerned, surpassed the Blaine greeting, followed Mr. Thompson's speech, and it was nearly two minutes before the Harrison cheers subsided.

The call of states was resumed, and when Michigan was reached there was a breathless pause, but no response came from the Michigan delegation.

"What's the matter with Alger!" shouted a southern delegate.

A voice replied, "Not in it," and the convention taking it that the Michigan delegation had retired the Wolverine candidate from the race, burst into cheers, just why no one knew.

A Second for Blaine.

A Second for Blaine.

Mr. Eustis, of Minnesota, seconded the nomination of Blaine.

"The republican party honored its great leaders," he said, "but above them all stood one man. Every issue on which he must win is personified in his name."

At the close of Mr. Eustis's speech the chief Blaine demonstration of today took place. It seemed as if it were without end. The crowd yelled, waved umbrellas, threw hats in the air, danced, cheered, and after every man had come to think human power must soon overcome itself, the old stamping cry. "Blaine, Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine," spread throughout the power must soon overcome itself, the old stamping cry, "Blaine, Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine," spread throughout the Minneapolis, Minn., June 10.—When it had lasted so that subsidence was coming had lasted so that subsidence was coming from exhaustion, some one in the crowd began hissing, when a lady was given a huge star bearing a portrait of Blaine. She waved it on high and cheering was again renewed. The enthusiasm began to stir up the old Blaine men, who had reluctantly consented to go into the McKinley movement. This once again excited Foraker's hopes that the gallant war horse of his devotion might go through in a hurrah, so that Clarkson and other leaders had to go to him and stop him from breaking the programme. The cheers lasted thirty-one minutes.

THIS TIME IT IS DEPEW

Members.

Minneapolis, June 10.—When the cheers which followed this speech of the colored delegate had subsided the name of New York was called. As the courtly Depew arose 5,000 Harrison representatives burst into one mighty cheer.

The climax of Depew's speech came at a juncture unexpected by the speaker. Alluding to the brilliant records and deeds of the administration, he said:

"Who will be credited a share in every one of them?"

The Demonstration Begins Instantly a voice shouted, "Blaine," and another monster demonstration was precipitated by the followers of the plumed knight. The expected demonstration followed Depew's speech, and it nearly rivaled the Blaine outburst of a few minutes previous the Blaine outburst of a few minutes previous.

A huge 6x8 portrait of the president was borne down to the grand stand, and Fred Douglas, the leader of the colored race, led the mighty ovation by mounting a chair and waving is hat high into the air, while his white hair flew to the breezes. The band struck up a lively air and the enthusiat m grew with every minute. A quick-witted Blaine man was the first to check it. Grasping the huge silken banner of the Chicago Blaine club, bearing the portrait of the great popular leader, he marched up the center aisle. As the Blaine and Harrison banners met midway a counter demonstration followed, which words cannot describe. All joined in the enthusiasm of the occasion. The tri-color plumes of Blaine were hoisted on every side, and as if by magic a score of portraits of Harrison and Blaine were swung to the breeze.

WARNER MILLER 18 PROSY,

WARNER MILLER IS PROSY,

Minneapolis, June 10.—In twenty minutes the rival demonstrations had st-isided sufficiently for the chair to announce that ex-Senator Warner Miller, of New York, was recognized. The speech of the Nicaragua canal advocate, seconding Blaine's nomination, was brief, and his Words of harmony were well received. His statement that he and his friends had no words of detraction for President Harrison, and that the nominer of the convention would receive the support of all republicans provoked hearty applause.

The general undersuanding had been that Foraker would make the principal speech for Blaine, and when, for some reason unknown to the great bulk of the audience Foraker reticently but firmly declined to comply, the disappointment was intense.

A colored orator gained the platform, and was coldly received at first, but when he said sarcastic reference had been made to the shouting of the people in the galleries for Blaine, he brought down the house by the declaration: "Thank God, the people in the galleries have votes at the polls." Then he had the audience, and every sentence was cheered to his last that, "Eternity itself shall catch the name of James G. Blaine."

"The convention of 1888 made no mistake," he said, "when it intrusted the honor and responsibility of leadership to Benjamin Harrison. (Cheers.) And Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, during his administration, has made no mistake." (Applause.) Spooner also took occasion to speak kind words of Blaine, McKinley and Alger.

TWO ASSES ON THE STAND.

Downey, of Wyoming. and Elliot F. Sheppard, of New York.

S. W. Downey, of Wyoming, said he came from that far-off state to second the nomination of James G. Blaine. (Cheers.) Downey provoked great laughter by saying that when he listened to the speech of Dew it reminded him of the old days of Harrison. At the end it was obvious pew it reminded him of the old days of Demosthenes.

Elliot F. Sheppard arose with great gravity, and grasping Depew's hand, congratulated him, upon the distinction thrown upon him by the parellel, and the eloquent New Yorker blushed deeply. The vast audience, convulsed with laughter, cheered the little scene with much vigor. The speaker continuing, grew somewhat tiresome, and was interrupted with cries of "Time, time." Chairman McKinley came to his relief by stating that there was no limit to the time of the nominating speeches, and that every gentleman was entitled to a respectful hearing. Grateful Mr. Downey testified his appreciation by turning to Mr. McKinley and telling him to make no pledges, and that when four years more rolled around he would be the invincible candidate of the republicans. (Cheers.)

THE VOTE OF OHIO Gives Rise to an Interesting Incident in the Minneapolis, June 10.—At the conclusion of the call of states, ex-Governor Sewell, of New Jersey, moved that the convention proceed to ballot. When the state of Ohio was reached. occurred the most dramatic incident ever witnessed in a national convention, that of a presidential candidate challenging the legality of the vote cast for him by his "Ohio gives two votes for Benjamin Har-"Ohio gives two votes for Benjamin Harrison and forty-four for William McKinley," said Mr. Foraker, and the pandemonium of enthusiasm that greeted the announcement showed that President Harrison had lost twenty-seven votes in the state of Ohio. All enthusiasm must have an end, however, and when the cheering delegates were hoarse and tired, McKinley, who had been sitting silent with visage as immovable as a sphynx, arose, and in a voice which penetrated to every corner of the vast hall, said:

Challenges the Vote.

Challenges the Vote.

"I challenge the vote of the state of Ohio. I am a delegate from that state."

There was a breathless pause, but Foraker was soon on his feet and waving his hand deprecatingly at the chairman he said:

"But you have been retired from this delegation, Mr. Chairman, by your election to the chairmanship of this convention, and your alternate has taken your place, and we no longer know you as a member of the Ohio delegation."

This generous action of the ex-governor towards the man who but recently had been identified with an opposite faction in the state of Ohio, evoked all the better impulses of the vast audience, and Harrison, as well as Blaine and McKinley delegates, found themselves cheering the generosity of the chairman of the Ohio delegation.

The Vote Polled.

The Vote Polled.

"The chairman overrules the point of order," said McKinley to Foraker, "and asks the secretary of the convention to call the roll."

Another ovation fell to the lot of the governor of Ohio, this time, however, from the Harrison delegates, in admiration of his loyal support of the president.

There was but little noise throughout the hall as the secretary of the convention calmly turned the leaves until the roll of the Ohio delegation was reached, and called the first name of the list, that of William McKinley, Jr.

"I vote for Benjamin Harrison," said the great protectionist, and the greatifying cheers that resounded through the hall were quieted only when the object of all this enthusiasm waved his gavel deprecatingly to restore order.

and there was a breathless pause.

"William McKinley," said the ex-gow ernor, and this time it was Foraker who for his loyalty to the governor of his statt deserved the plaulits of the multitude. Name after name was called, and when the end of the roll was reached, it gave one vote to Benjamin Harrison and forty-five votes to McKinley, a loss of one to the president by reason of the polling of the delegation. One of the Harrison delegates had reconsidered, and voted for McKinley, and the governor's alternate, it was discovered, had on the first ballot actually voted for Harrison in 'obedience to the previous request of McKinley, although the latter, doubtless supposed he had disobeyed this injunction, and voted for his chief.

A REVOLT AGAINST QUAY,

And He Handles Ten Votes Less Than He

Minneapolis, June 10.—When the state of Pennsylvania was called, a minute later, great surprise greeted the convention. Various delegates who up to this time had apparently been docile under the leadership of Senator Quay, revolted, and when the result was announced Harrison had ten more votes than had been expected from this state. Of course, the Harrison people cheered tumultucusly at this announcement, and when South Dakota followed, with a solid vote for Harrison, and a little later Texas gave him twenty-two votes, it was apparent that the president would certainly be nominated, and the scene of enthusiasm provoked by his followers was unrivalled by any previous incident of the day. Minneapolis, June 10.-Cheer after cheer

Minneapolis, June 10.—Cheer after cheer was given until Governor McKinley said:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention—I move that the rules be suspended and that Benjamin Harrison be nominated unanimously for president of the United States by acclamation."

The Harrison people gave one wild, hysterical cheer of exultation and approval, but there were cries of "No, no! Roll call Roll call" from Blaine and McKinley delegates in various parts of the hall. An enthusiastic Blaine man made the point of order that the motion of McKinley was not in order pending a roll call.

"I desire to say," said McKinley, "that you can suspend any rule you have got by a two-thirds majority, and let us do it now." Once more the Harrison people gave manifestations that their cup of joy was overflowing, but the Blaine and McKinley people were still obstinate and refused to yield to the persuasive influence of the generous governor of Ohio. Chairman Pro Tem. Shepard started to put the motion, but there was such evidence of disapprobation that his voice could not be heard.

"The interpreter of the rules of the fifty-first congress—and he is a man who helped to frame them—says that we may suspend these rules at any time," shouted Shepard, and the vast audience cheered both McKinley and Reed, not exactly knowing to which he referred.

Just at this juncture various gentlemen surrounded McKinley and a hurried conference was held. The latter again mounted the platform, beckoned for recognition and said:

"Mr. Chairman, let me say one word. There are states, as I understand it, that have not been reached which desire to recognition of my motion. (Applanse.) I, therefore, in order to enable them to do so, withdraw my motion." (Prolonged applause.)

"Hurrah for McKinley," shouted a stentorian voice in the gallery, and the cheer was taken up until the napoleonic exponent of tariff reform was compelled to bow his acknowledgements,

THE ROLL CALL RESUMED,

Minneapolis, June 10.—The roll call continued, and, of course, from this time on showed a steady and significant gain for Harrison. At the end it was obvious that he was nominated by a considerable majority, but it required the clerks a long time to foot up the result.

"The clerks will announce the result of the roll call," said Chairman McKinley half an hour later, he having resumed the chair in the interval.

"The whole number of votes," said the clerk, "is 904 1-3. The number necessary to a choice is 453. (Applause.) Benjamin Harrison receives 535 1-16 votes. (Prolonged applause.)

"James G. Blaine receives 182 1-6. (Applause.)

"James G. Blaine receives 182. (Cheers.)
"William McKinley receives 182. (Cheers.)
"Robert Lincoln 1 vote."
"Thomas B. Reed 1 vote." (Applause.)
"Benjamin Harrison having received the majority of all the votes cast," said Chairman McKinley, "is the nominee of this convention; shall that nomination be made unanimous?" (Great applause and cheers and cries of "Yes, yes; let us make it unanimous."

"All in favor of making it unanimous say aye," said the chairman. There was a storm of ayes. Chairman McKinley never storm of ayes. Chairman McKinley never put the negative.

"It is unanimous," said he at 4:36 o'clock p. m., and once more the convention gave itself over to one of those scenes of enthusiasm which had become so familiar to the proceedings of the day. A delegate moved to adjourn until 8 o'clock p. m., and although there was a disposition to finish up the work at once, the motion prevailed and the convention adjourned until that hour.

Whitelaw Reid Sprung.

Immediately after adjournment rumpr went forth that Whitelaw Reid, the gifted editor of The New York Tribune, had been selected by the delegates of New York as their candidate for vice president, and that he would receive the solid support of the Empire State.

This reort spread with lightning rapidity, and although it was not authoritatively confirmed by the New York delegation, the boom of the ex-diplomat at once became a formidable movement. Whitelaw Reid Sprung.

Washington, June 10.-(Special.)-1t was half past 5 o'clock, eastern time, when President Harrison learned that the republican convention had endorsed his administration by nominating him for a second term.

The Little Man's Composure He was sitting in his office at the time chatting in the most composed manner with several members of the cabinet in regard to the work of the convention, ud was probably the least excited man in the group. Arrangements at the white house for the reception of news from the convention were admirable, a special wire with the supreme right of establishing free and uninterrupted communication between the convention hall and the white house having been obtained.

When the News Came In. The executive telegraph office is in the northeast corner of the second floor, and is almost directly across the hall from the president's office. Very interesting events occurred in these two rooms during the afternoon. The telegraph office had been closed during the forenoon to everybody except officials of the executive mansion, but about 3 o'clock, when it became known that the ballot was to be taken Private Secretary Halford directed that the room be opened to the newspathe hall, and in the adjoining room to await the result. The privilege was gladly accepted, and the small room was soon prowded. Private Secretary Halford and the postmaster general were seated near etins were recorded on a typewriting machine, each with a tally sheet before him. Crowded around and behind these gentlemen were about thirty newspaper men and friends of the president.

The Man Who Deserted Blaine. Secretary Elkins gravitated between egraph office and the president's room, and showed a thorough knowledge of the situation as it developed. He frequently consulted the postmaster general's figures, and as the votes of the different states were recorded, he remarked signifigoing all right," that "the Harrison delegates know their business," and that "we are gaining votes in some places where we did not even hope for gains."

The operator handed the bulletins to who read them aloud, recorded the votes on his tally sheet, and then passed them over to either Russell Har rison or Lieutenant Parker, by whom they were carried in to the president, who read them to Secretaries Noble, Rusk, Tracy, and Attorney General Miller.

There was not the least rush or excitement during the balloting up to the time the wire announced that Ohio had cast forty-five votes for McKinley. This was entirely unlooked for, and for the first sed a doubt of Harrison's nomination on the first ballot which, up to that time, had seemed assured. It was here remarked that it was now clear that the opposition meant to swing all the votes ley could get to McKinley, and that insylvania's sixty-five votes would be a great factor in that direction. When it was announced, however, that the Keystone state had given the president nineteen votes, an increase of ten votes over last night's vote, the small cloud of doubt that had arisen was speedily dispelled. Wanamaker said that the presdent now wanted only sixty votes from states which last night cast over 110 votes against the opposition.

After the vote of South Dakota had been received, and while every one was waiting to hear the vote of Tennessee, the sounder went "click," "click," "click," and without attempting to write out the message the operator repeated excitedly, "Har-rison is nominated!"

Great excitement followed the announce-od! Good!" shouted Wanamaker, "Good! Good!" shouted Wanamaker, and Halford darted out of the room to prevent the message reaching the president in advance of its official confirmation. He said he wanted to avoid "a flash in the pan." He was, however, too late; as Tibbett, the president's stenographer, who had been standing outside the door, had heard the words and carried the news to the president before Mr. Halford could interfere. He had hardly delivered the message, when Halford entered the cabinet room with the official vote of Texas, which gave the president a clear majority in the convention, and settled all question as to the nomination.

The operator remained at his instrument record the votes of the remaining states, but he no longer had any company. Every else, including all the newspaper crowded into the cabinet room and showered congratulations on the president. He received them most cordially and shook hands with each. He was cool and com-posed, but took no pains to conceal his gratification.

"This is what I have been hoping for ever since the convention met. I believe that with Harrison as the nominee of the republican party we can win."

"On what do you found your opinion?"

"It seems perfectly plain to me," he replied, "that Harrison represents the force bill and all other obnoxious measures. The people have shown what they think of the legislation he represents, and I believe that with Harrison opposed to the democracy, the democracy is a sure winner." I cannot expect my democratic friends to think that I have been on the right lines always, and yet it has been very gratifying to me to know that many things have secured the approval of my political opponents. I have been filled with the thought that this country was coming to an epoch when the flag and those things which it symbolizes will be upon a still higher plane than now, and when our influence among the powers of the earth will be enlarged wisely, and yet energetically. I have a sincere love for all our people. I exclude no section. I take into my affection and respect all the states and all our people.

In entering upon this campaign, I shall do so without malice towards any one. I think I have sometimes been suspected of being very little of a politician from the fact that I have never drawn inside the party personal lines. I have tried to treat every one with that respect to which his station entitled him, and I have never, in any case, suggested, much less demanded, personal loyalty from anybody. I have asked of all the public officers the faithful performance of their duty. I have felt great regret that I was unable to find a suitable place for every deserving friend, but I have instead that I did not disparage those I could not appoint to places. As I have had the light and strength I have ried to discharge my duties for the public good. I thank you all for the very many evidences of your kindness. I wish also to express my thanks, with a heart that overflows with gratitude, to the faithful body of friends who have been so zealous in my behalf, and more than that, to that great body of well-disposed, order-loving, patriotic Americans who have always and everywhere received me kindly. (Applanse.)

Mrs. Harrison Informed.

The president excused himself and the visitors left the house. Mrs. Harrison, who has been an invalid for weeks past was purposely kept in ignorance of the exciting events of the past week. Now that there was no longer any doubt as to the president's nomination it was concluded that good news would do her no harm. The president himself imparted the information and the result justified his judgment.

His Fame and Fortune.

Whitelaw Reld has made his fame and fortune and won the bonor of second place on the republican national ticket through years of brilliant newspaper work. The younger generation knows him as the editor of The New York Tribune, the leading republican paper of the nation. But before he accepted a postson with Horace Greeley he won a national reputation as war correspondent of The Cincinnati Gazette. He was at the front in the two Virginia campaigns with McClellan and Rosecrans, and gave to the world the earliest record of Grant's victory at Donelson. His vivid, picturesque and clear description of the battle of Gettysburg established his rank as a journalist. Greeley tried to get him then, but it was four or five years later before he succeeded in inducing Reld to leave The Gazette.

Upon Greeley's defeat in the presidential campaign, Reid became the editor-in-chief of the daily. He had a splendid staff, but the journal had lost its prestige, and was losing money. Reid had supreme pluck and infinite resources. He secured capital, spent it liberally and rapidly restored The Tribune's fortunes.

erally and rapidly restored The Tribune's fortunes.

Whitelaw Reid was born in Ohio. His uncle, Rev. Hugh McMillan, educated him. Young Whitelaw graduated at Miami university with the honors of his class. His remarkable skill in the use of words is attributed to his extensive classical reading. He taught school for a year, but gave that up to become editor and proprietor of The Xenia News. He advocated Lincoln in 1860 and went to Columbus as a legislative correspondent. His clever work brought him an offer of the city editorship of The Cincinnati Gazette, and when the war broke out he went to the front as this paper's correspondent.

Mr. Reld is of Scotch descent, and his traits are peculiarly Scotch.

Not until he was forty-two did he marry.
His wife is a daughter of Millionaire D. O. Mills, of New York. They were married in 1881. Their New York residence, on Madison avenue, is a large and splendid house. He owns a fine country estate near White Plains. He is now fifty-five years of age. President Harrison appointed him minister to France in 1880, and he held the position until last winter, when he resigned and came home.

Mr. Blaine was not excited. He did not ook discouraged. In fact, he was wonderfully cool. There was even a slight smile on his face, and he looked as if he was glad the battle was over, and he was still a

At 4:54 o'clock, two minutes after Harison had received a majority of the votes, the signal agreed upon was given.

Two minutes later The Constitution reporter rapped at Mr. Blaine's door. To the servant who answered, the reporter said:

Mr. Blaine heard the words and asked the reporter inside.

Mr. Blaine was sitting in an easy chair by the window, his coat unbuttoned and one hand carelessly twirling his eyeglasses. Numerous papers and dispatches were scattered upon the floor near his chair. Mrs. Blaine stood near by, her clbow upon the mantel.

The reporter replied: "Very close, it is "Yes, your dispatch proves itself, for the gures are right." It was then that Mr. Blaine said, tapping Washington, June 10.—When interrogated today as to the truth of The New York Times' report that he has withdrawn from the contest for the presidential memination, which was telegraphed by the Associated Press last night, Senator Hill simply said: "On the eve of a national convention, I do not propose personally either to admit or deny any sensational canard which may be circulated by political enemies. Mr. John Birmingham, his private secretary, said, however.

"There is no truth in The New York Times' statement. It is made out of the whole cloth. No such letter has been written or contemplated. It is a specimen mugwump lie, conceived and designed to injure Senator Hill, and to aid the mugwump candidate. It is impossible for The Times to tell the truth in reference to anything relating to Senator Hill. The public, for the next two weeks, should be prepared for all sorts of canards emanating from the same source. The Times is Cleveland's personal organ, and it is easy to see where these also stories briginate, for whose benefit they are manufactured."

NOTHER CHAPTER TO THE STORY

Of the Killing of Richard Byrne-Can Gentry Prove an Alibi to Save His Neck?-Other Notes.

Is Asbury Gentry innocent? That is a question being much asked in Carroll Haralson and the adjoining counties and the reason for its asking forms an interesting chanter in this sensational story. Bobb Mann says Gentry is innocent and that he himself did the killing.

That is the story in brief. The details are given in the following: Kramer, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—Another ensational chapter has come to light in the Gentry case.

Asbury Gentry is now behind the bars in Fulton county jail, convicted of the murder of the old foot peddler, Richard Byrnes. The conviction was made about three weeks ago. Gentry, whose home is near Buchanan, Har-alson county, was sentenced to hang July 15th, for murder.

On the trial Gentry attempted to prove an alibi. It seems now from recent develop-ments that Asbury Did Not Kill the Old Peddler.

Sheriff J. M. Hewitt, of Carroll county, and Colonel Edgar W. Watkins, one of Gentry's energetic attorneys, who lives at Carrollton have brought to light some facts that wil of being hanged he may be made a free man. Ben Mann was first arrested for the murder of the old peddler, but was turned free for want of evidence at the late term of Haralson superior court. Some days ago Mann moved to Carroll county and was a farm hand on the form of W. H. Griffin, and in conversation farm hands, said he

but could not be hurt for it now as Asbury Gentry had been convicted of the crime and would be hanged July 15th. He gave his reason for killing the old peddler as follows: He said: The old peddler came to his house about noon on the day he was killed and tried about noon of the day he was kined and tried to sell Mann's wife some goods. His wife declined to buy the goods and then, as she was alone, the old peddler began making improper proposals 70 Mann's wife, which his wife resented and Byrnes left. Mann says he soon came home from his work. His wife informed him of Byrnes's conduct and this se paraged. nim of Byrnes's conduct and this so enraged Mann that he took up his pistol, followed the Rowell's bridge, in the big road. He then threw the body into the river. This story has caused a considerable sensation. Ben Mann is a very ignorant man and many believe his story. Others, however, believe it to be a concocted scheme to secure a new trial for Gentry and thus save his neck for a while.

Mann will be arrested and put in jail.

THE STATE TICKET COMPLETED.

The Alabama Convention Completes Work and Adjourns.

Montgomery, Ala., June 10.—(Special.)— The Alabama state democratic convention closed its labors today and adjourned, after having nominated a full state ticket, presi-dential electors and the twenty-two dele-gates from Alabama to the national con-vention. rention.

The delegates to Chicago go uninstructed, the sentiment of the convention being against instruction. The delegates to Chi-State at Large—E. W. Pekins, A. G. Smith, R. N. Rhodes and J. B. Knox.

The state ticket was completed today by the nomination of the following candidates: Governor, Thomas G. Jones, of Montgomery; secretary of state, J. D. Barron, of Clay; attorney general, W. L. Martin, of Jackson; auditor, John Purifoy, of Wilcox; treasurer, J. C. Smith, of Dallas; commissioner of agriculture, H. D. Lane, of Limestone; superIntendent of education, J. E. Harris, of Sumter.

of Lowndes; E. L. Russell, of Mobile.

An inquiry among the members places the position of the national delegation about as follows: A good majority favor the expresident, but less than half the delegates are what might be called pronounced Cleveland men. The remainder, twelve or fifteen, are men who will go to Chicago to vote for the most available man—the man whose nomination, in their opinion, means the most for the south and whose election seems the surest. If that man is Mr. Cleveland, he will get nearly all the Alabama delegation, but the delegates preferred to be uninstructed.

Since the lord disappeared efforts have been made to capture and bring him back.

Nothing has been said recently, but in a quiet way the search for the missing nobleman has gone on unabated.

Miss Mary Ellen McLane, who has been for some time an inmate of Providence infirmary, died yesterday morning.

Miss McLane was twenty-eight years of age and was a lady of many excellent traits of character. Her remains were carried to Patterson's undertaking apartments and will be taken this morning to Lithonia, Ga., her old home, for interment. Chicago Market.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, June 10.—There was an unsettled feeling at the opening in wheat, and this was followed by a heavy feeling and a comparatively dull market, with the price at midday 1 cent under the close of yesterday. There were not the usual number of influences at work in the pit, and there was a disposition to wait for the government crop report. There was a decline early, caused by a better report from Kansas, as well as statements that the Hatch bill would probably pass the senate, and nothing seemed to railly the market.

July started at $4.3.4, half a cent underlast night, made a little upturn a few minutes later to $4.7.8 and $5, went back to $4.1.2, the first hour and back down to $4.1.2, with only a fraction railly, to $4.1.2, holding 1 cent under last night one hour before the close. There was a slight railly later, but the bear pressure was too great, and the close was 1.1.4 under last night.

Corn acted very much the same as wheat, closing somewhat heavy and close to the bottom figures.

TWO BIG MEETINGS

Held in Waycross on the Congress

Waycross, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—Waycross is politically submerged tonight. There are two audiences assembled, one at the opera house to hear Judge Atkinson and one at the courthouse to hear Captain Turner's supporters. At the opera house Colonel John C. McDonald presided and eloquently introduced Judge Atkinson. At the courthouse Hon. Leon A. Wilson presided and introduced Mr. McK. F. McCook. Mr. McCook spoke for an hour in a most eloquent, convincing argument for true democracy and the interest of Mr. Turner.

Turner,
Hon. Ben E. Russell, Judge M. L. Mershon and Frank H. Harrell followed Mr.
McCook in very eloquent appeals and were greeted with hearty responses. LOOKS LIKE A SHORTENED CROP.

The Lowest Average, with One Exception Since 1874.

Washington, June 10.—Returns of statistical correspondents of the department of agriculture repert cotton plantling late, germination retarded by the low temperature and slow development of the plant. In the entire cotton belt the temperature of the past three months is reported below normal, and in some districts 2 and 3 degrees below. The rainfall has also been reported below normal on the Atlantic coast, while generally in excess in the Mississippi valley, both conditions co-operating with the low semperature to retard growth.

Many correspondents of the Atlantic section report poor stands.

The average condition of cotton in the consolidation of reports is 85.9. This is the low-set average, with one exception, since 1874. State averages are as follows: Virginia, 79; North Carolina, 85; South Carolina, 91; Georgia, 87; Florida, 89; Alabama, 91; Mississippi, 91; Louislana, 82; Tevas, 81; Arkansas, 75; Tennessee, 90.

The reduction of the area from floods resulting from river overflows, especially of the Mississippi and its tributaries, has been heavy. The acreage of cotton has been materially reduced. On the 1st of May, while planting was progressing, our correspondents reported an intention to reduce the acreage 18.6 per cent.

am Small's Political Pathway Not Strewn with Roses.

Monroe, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—Sam Small spoke here yesterday to a large crowd. He abused the democrats for doing nothing in congress and made slighting remarks about the party, which were promptly resented by the chairman of the meeting, who, after telling Small his statements were not true, left the chair and the house. This caused Small to change his tone, and after lauding the denocratic party for what it had done in the past and begging the people not to leave it until after the Chicago convention, closed his speech. He did himself and his party no good, and he will never induce another crowd of Walton county citizens to quit their work and go out to hear him.

N. Bennett. It is indeed a "tough story," rather, it is a tough ile out of the whole cloth.

There is not one iota of truth in the entire article so far as it relates to me. No endeavor, offer or suggestion of my seiling myself and contributing money to the people's party has ever been made or thought of. I have never written a line upon such a subject, or upon any subject connected with the people's party to Watson, Ellington or any other person connected with that movement. The story is base, false and absurd to the lait degree.

Messrs. Watson, Ellington and their colleagues are honorable men, in my judgment, and they are at perfect liberty to exhibit anything emanating from me upon this matter if they have it. The subject is open to the world. I denounce the lie absolutely. Respectfully,

Mr. Much interest attaches to the piano recital to be given at DeGive's opera house at an early date by Mr. Edward Bak, who is regarded as one of the most promising young musicians in the country.

Mr. Constantine Sternberg, the eminent planist so well known here, has written a letter to The Constitution, in which he says: "Mr. Edward Bak has been my pupil during my entire pleasantly remembered sojourn in Atlanta, as well as two years here in Philadelphia. He has—I am quite positive about it—never been a pupil of Mr. Rehm, but the mistake may have occurred from the circumstance that Mr. Rehm himself has been under my tutelage for awhile."

THE GEORGIA FEMALE SEMINARY

Address by Governor Northen-A Fine Programme by the Pupils-Exer-cises at Other Schools.

Gainesville, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—The Queen City of the Mountains has never nown a week of such gayety and literary musical enjoyment as the one nov trawing to a close. It has been commencement week of the seminary—Gainesville's pride—and the city has given itself up to the enjoyment of the exercises. Visitors from all parts of the state have been with es and the universal verdict is that no coltre exercises.

The president's reception on last Friday night was, indeed, a brilliant affair and the bery of beautiful school girls and handome young men in the handsomely decor-sted and brilliantly lighted parlors made a scene long to be remembered. On Sunday Dr. L. R. Gwaltney, of Athens, preached the commencement sermon to a large audi-nce. Dr. Gwaltney had never been in our midst before, but during his short visit he many friends and admirers. His ser mon was grand and peculiarly appropriate to the occasion. At night Dr. J. M. Brittin preached an able and instructive serbefore the Diaz Missionary Society. The music on Sunday was undoubtedly the finest we ever heard upon any similar occasion. The opening anthem was composed by Professor Charles J. Wallace, director of music of the seminary, and was simply grand. The seminary orchestra added greatly to the music of the occasion. We doubt if there is an institution in the state that the seminary in its doubt if there is an institution in the state that can rank with the seminary in its musical department. Professor Wallace is a magnificent musician and a composer of note, and the entertainments given by his pupils and those of Mrs. Van Hoose and Miss Oviatt have been superb. The most classic music has been rendered and at the musical matinee Wednesday afternoon selections from Liszt, Chopin, Van Weber, Moskowski and other great masters, charmed and delighted the great audience. The playing of Misses Brinson, Stokes, Couch, Evans and Quinn could not be excelled. At the conclusion of the matinee, Professor Van Hoose conferred music diplomas upon these young ladies, awarding Misses Brinson and Stokes the first honor of the department.

Brinson and Stokes the first honor of the department.

On Wednesday morning, Hon. Hewlitt Hall, of Newnan, delivered what is generally conceded to be the most chaste and elegant address ever heard in Gainesville. He is a young man of great ability and will be heard from in the future. Wednesday night was devoted to the graduating exercises and twelve accomplished young ladies received diplomas. The essays were entirely different from those usually heard upon such occasions and the crowded house dies received diplomas. The essays were represented an issue of The Gainesville Eagle as it will probably appear in 1992 and the fair graduates did credit to themselves and their alma mater. The following the programme:

Address—Governor W. J. Northen.
Violin Solo—"Home, Sweet Home"—Professor Wallace.
At the conclusion of the readings, Colonel H. W. Ham, in one of his happiest speeches, introduced Governor Northen, who addressed the class and delivered the diplomas. His speech was full of sound advice and Gainesville was captured by the humor and the practical sense of the governor's remarks. Professor Wallace then played "Home, Sweet Home" as a violin solo and the commencement was at an end. This morning the girls bade farewell to the seminary and their friends here and went home for vacation.

The faculty for next year will be a most excellent one. The music department will be strengthened by the addition of Miss Belle DuBois, one of the finest vocalists in this country. She spent five years at the famous Milan conservatory in Italy and will make a strong addition to this already excellent faculty. The school is in a most prosperous condition, having 225 pupils this year. Professor Van Hoose is a tireless worker and is meeting with the greatest success in his noble work.

Marietta, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—The closing exercises of the Marietta Male academy were begun last night at the courthouse, and an immense crowd was present. The evening was given up to the Phi Gamma society.

The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. H. J. Ellis. Music was furnished by Wurm's band. The anniversary address was made by Master Dan Mauget.

The boys then plunged into the heat of debate. Their subject was: "Resolved, That there should be free and unlimited coinage of silver." This subject was well handled by J. A. Massey, Jr., and Fred Morris on the part of the affirmative, and Bolan Brumby and V. E. Manget, Jr., on the part of the megative. The judges, through Colonel R. N. Holland, decided in favor of the affirmative.

A novel essay was rendered by R. Howell and B. Holmes. The signal was given and the curtain run back and under the glare of a red calcium light the audience saw rather than heard this remarkable essay. The backs of the boys were turned toward the audience and were decorated by two large pieces of pasteboard. On one was the letter "S." and on the other the letter "A." It took several minutes for the audience to drink in the full meaning of this learned production, but when they did all with one accord burst forth in Tapturous applause.

Two Shares Get a Lot.

The High Point Cumberland Island Company gives a lot 50x150 feet, near the hotel, to every person who subscribes for two shares of its stock, which costs $100 a share payable in four mouthly installments of $25 each, to be paid when 650 shares are subscribed. The money paid in on these shares goes into the hands of trustees, who guarantee that it will be applied to building a first-class modern hotel; a railroad from the hotel to the ocean beach, bathhouses, to fencing and stocking with game the two-thousand-acre game park, and an artesian well; and all of these comforts are to be owned by the stockholders who take shares, and on their stock it is believed they will receive a good interest dividend and at the same time own a lot for every two shares taken. UNDER A PROCESS OF ATTACHMENT.

Colonel J. C. Fain, of Calhoun, Gs., Sues Out an Attachment Against A. C. Tichenor, the Manager.

The Georgia Portable Electric Light Company is resting under a heavy cloud. Mr. A. C. Tichenor, the general manager, has his office on the second floor of the Brown building at 48 Wall street, and there he has been in the habit of transacting the affairs of the company.

Yesterday morning the door of Mr. Tich-

I hereby notify all persons that I have leried on all the goods in this hall and in these rooms, in fact on all the property of A. C. Ticknor, and have signed the same this June 9, 1892. R. T. HARPER, L. C.

Boxes and barrels containing batteries and other electrical appliances were piled in the hallway around the entrance to Mr. Tichenor's office, while an open window revealed that the same kind of merchandise was stored up in the room that was locked. The levy was made under a process of attachment sworn out in Justice Orr's court by Colonel J. C. Fain, of Calhoun, Ga. Colonel Fain, it was ascertained, was formerly a stockholder in the Georgia Portable Electric Light Company and occupied the office of its president, but for some reason or other, becoming dissatisfied, he sent in his resignation and withdrew from the association altogether. The amount of the debt, it is thought, is for money put into the company by Colonel Fain and receipted for by Mr. Tichenor, the business manager.

THE GOVERNOR VISITS THE BOYS.

Inspecting the Quarters-How the Senti nels Are Sometimes Past-Pranks of the Boys-The Baldwin Blues.

Camp Northen, Griffin, June 10.—(Special.)—This has been an intensely warm day at the camps. Old Sol has rubbed his eyes and stared unblinkingly down on the white tents and uncovered parade grounds all day.

In spite of the hot sunshine the have gone through with their regular duties with their usual promtness and efficiency. The warm weather is hard upon those on guard duty. To protect the guards as much as possible, Colonel Wyly very thoughtfully had constructed several tents along the line for the use of those on duty during the rain or when overcome by the heat. This kindness of Colonel Wyly is much appreciated by the boys.

Colonel Wyly has made himself very popular with the soldiers by his thoughtful consideration and courteous treatment. He is an excellent commanding officer as the order and quiet and punctual discharge of all duties at the camp prove.

Quite a number of distinguished visitors are here today, the attraction being the review of the troops by the governor.

Governor Northen came down this morning at 10 o'clock. He was accompanied by Adjutant and Inspector General John McI. Kell and Quartermaster General A. J. West. The latter two members of the staff have been engaged in inspecting camp quarters.

One of the distinguished companies in camp here now is the Baldwin Blues, of Milledgeville, commanded by Captain D. S. Sanford.

The company's first parade was in 1831. The company's first parade was in 1831. From that time till now the Baldwin Blues have been in perpetual organization.

The company was commanded at the beginning of the civil war by Captain George Dolas, who rose to the rank of general before the war ended. The company now pays tribute to his memory on the 26th of each April by firing a salute pany now pays tribute to his memory on the 26th of each April by firing a salute over his grave.

The present company enjoys a distinction of which no other company can boast, every member of it being the son of a veteran of the confederacy.

In former days the boys laid great stress on their ability to win prizes, but now their only devotion is to duty and strict military discipline. They are the proud owners of the confederate colors and muster roll which stand of colors and roll went into many a hard-fought battle under the leadership of the south's noble Lee.

The Baldwin Blues bear the distinction, too, of being the only company in camp with their sponsor, who is Miss Julia Crowell, one of Georgia's brightest young ladies, and the company is justly proud of her. It is said that Corporal Fowler, of the Blues, persists in calling the Floyd Rifles' coon a monkey. Somehow this looks a little suspicious.

Big-hearted, whole-souled and full of life, those Baldwin Blues are the life of the middle part of the camp grounds. They are conspicuous for their hilarity and uniform good nature.

Captain Sanford and his aides, Lieutenants Adams and Hall are the youngest commissioned officers in camp. Captain Sanford's commission dates June, 1891. C. K. of the Forsyth company, so he puts pepper in it to warm it up.

The Americus Light Infantry gets a good deal of fun out of camp life. One of their number bears the clever distinction of being the greatest "smuggler" in camp. He donned a captain's uniform last night and slipped fifteen men through the picket lines. The guard discovered the mistake and gave chase, but only succeeded in capturing two of the men whom he placed in the guard tent. The first letters of the smuggler's name are Corporal Chapman.

Quartermaster Wheatly, of the Americus company, is growing so thin he has to go twice in one place to cast a shadow.

Quartermaster Wheatly, of the Americus company, is growing so thin he has to go twice in one place to cast a shadow.

Dr. Abner Campbell, chaplain of the Americus Light Infantry, was out at target practice this morning and made a good score. Dr. Campbell is greafly liked by the boys in camp and enters into their camp fun and jokes with a good deal of zest. Quartermaster Wheatly is working the picture racket in camp. He has to hire an extra servant each morning to carry off the cards the young ladies leave him to send them one of the pictures.

There are two members of the Americus Light Infantry who understand and execute the bear dance, to the delight of visitors in the afternoon.

A member of the Americus company who asks that his name be withheld, went out on a pass last night and decided on his return to slip the guard. He got inside the line, but was arrested, and when he produced his pass was put in the guard tent for two hours by the officer of the guard for fooling with the sentinel. He won't try the racket again.

C. E. Varinger, corporal of the Americus Light Infantry, has received many flattering compliments since coming into camp.

The Americus company came out in a new dress uniform this afternoon.

The Columbus Guards were reinforced today by the arrival of Privates J. H. Garrett and Stewart Mum. They had as visitors from home, Misses Minnie Burrus and Fannie Williams.

Corporal Kimbrough, of the Columbus company is wearing a handsome tin badge. He won it nobly and wears it gracefully.

Private Mizelle is so badly sunburned he says he's peeling all off. Private Charles Mizelle denies that his hair is auburn and says it's like the red hills of Georgia.

Privates Watts and Moorefield, of the Columbus Guards, failed to slip the guard last night and had to stay in the grove.

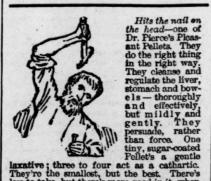

Lieutenant Palmer, of the regulars, is a man greatly liked by the volunters. He takes great pains in instructing the men, even going in their quarters and giving them private instructions. He instructed the officers in the manual of the sword this morning.

The Macon Volunteers welcomed the fol-ficers in the manual of the sword this holding.

The Macon Volunteers welcomed the following recruits today: Captain J. E. Wells and Privates Ben L. Jones, T. P. Bunkley, J. A. Gerdine and W. A. Wilder.

most valuable compliment they have received was from Lieutenant Palmer, of the United States army. While instructing the companies this afternoon, after drilling the Rifles a few moments only, he announced to Captain Davis that he could not teach him artificial that the company by their to Captain Davis that he could not teach him anything, that the company by their execution of the manual showed that their instruction was perfect. Regimental Quartermaster George W. Druncan is a genuine comnoisseur on both solids and liquids, and when he recommends either you may swear by its being all right. The Southern Cadets had as visitors today Mrs. M. G. White and Miss Clisby, of Macon; Miss Reynolds, of Mississippi, and Miss Hunnicutt, of Atlanta.

Misses May Bell Flanders and Daisy Thomas, of Macon, have been with the Baldwin Blues today.

Mrs. C. M. Wyly and Miss Wyly, wife and daughter of Colonel C. M. Wyly, of Macon, have been in camp today.

Captain David J. Bailey, Jr., entertained at dinner today a large party of friends. It was the social event of the week in camp. Captain Bailey and the Greys have a corps of cooks, as was evidenced by the elegant menu on his table today.

The target practice had to be dispensed with this morning, owing to the abuttment being too low for the Americus company. They shot too close to some hands.

The Gordon Institute Cadets will be guests of Camp Northen tomorrow. They arrive at 6 o'clock in the morning and return to their homes tomorrow inght.

The Perry Riffes are conceded to be the best drilled company in camp. They are praised on all sides for their soldierly bearing, attention to duty and all other requisites that go to make good soldiers. The most valuable compliment they have received was from Lieutenant Palmer, of the Marie and Called and paraphernalia of common kuklux and then soldey intended for an advertisement. The only place they visted under our immediate knowledge was the town of Spring Place where they proceeded to frighten innocent women and children and to impress the morality of the county. They rode into the limits of the town about 12:30 o'clock a.

Among the previous development of the weak in the moraling men who were stopping at the Temple house, and who will as a matter of course, tell how they were entertained at Spring Place wherever they go in the future. This will give people at a distance an utter di an utter distaste for the county of Murray and serve as a black eye to the morals of her people in the opinion of others. Another thing they did was to almost frighten the wits out of a number of ladies, which no crowd of gentlemen would knowingly do. They did no particular harm, but such actions open up the way in which wrong is sure to follow.

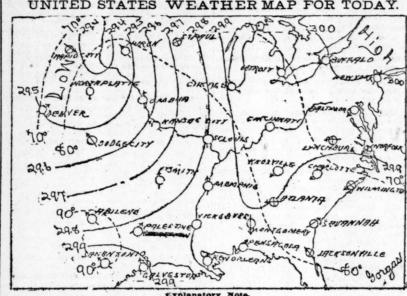

The gang numbered about sixty, and from all reports they were Whitfield county kuklux—at least they crossed the river and went into that county when they left here.

and went into that county when they left here.

The Spring Place Jimplelute, commenting on this band, says:

"We need no help from the Whitfield gang, as Murray has kuklux of her own, who are as much up to their business and fully as well calculated to attend to it as any gang in Georgia." any gang in Georgia.

Harrison the Man.

The nomination of Mr. Harrison at Minneapolis on the first ballot is no occasion for surprise on the part of those who have marked the temper and tendency of this representative republican body. It fulfills the predictions made by The Constitution several days ago, and justifies the conclusion which we drew from the suggestions and surroundings of those who had the president's cause in charge. It is a nomination that typifies with singular aptness the plans and purposes of the republicans, and it gives peculiar emphasis to the republican programme outlined in the platform and shadowed forth in the utterances of the leaders.

The Harrison administration has been everything that a narrow-minded republican partisan and sectionalist could desire, and in endorsing it by nominating him for a second term, the party of sectionalism has simply been true to its own record and to its own desire.

The campaign is already mapped out. It is to be fought on the old lines of tariff robbery and sectionalism. The southern farmers, if the republicans succeed, are not only to be taxed to add to the incomes of the rich manufacturers and monopolists, but are to be made the victims of force bill legislation. The old issues are at the front, and republican sectionalism cries aloud for a new era of reconstruc-

The democratic farmers must stand to their guns. They can have no excuse with Harrison as the leader of the repub tican crusade, to indulge in third party experiments. Issues broad and more important than those which relate to financial relief demand their attention. The emergencies of the time cry out to them to stand with their party in resisting the forts of the republican party to turn their states over to the blight of negro gether. At the south they must get to-Argument is unnecessary. The emer

Back of the Force Bill.

It is difficult for the southern people to single out and understand the moving cause of the sectional legislation proposed by the republican party.

What is back of the force bill? Partisan feeling and sectional hatred can hardly be so intense, after a generation of peace, as to proscribe the fairest quarter of the union.

What, then, is back of the force bill? Precisely the same passions and interests that started the anti-southern crusade ending in the late civil war. In plain English, the same economic and commer-cial differences that set the manufacturing north and the agricultural south inst each other in the early history of the republic are at work now. The north was opposed to slave labor in the south because it was cheap labor. It continues its fight against the south because we still have cheap labor.

The Chicago Inter Ocean in an editorial on the south and the force bill says:

When it tries to induce foreign capital i "cheap and docile labor." In one or two states of the south in which the iron industry has taken root there is determined and unconcealed hostility to the like industry of the northern states, and a resolute desire to supplant it by the product of the "cheap labor" of Alabama and Tennessee. It is notorious that work that is paid for by $1.25 in the north is paid for by 75 cents at the south, and the southern rate would be reduced still further could the southern demand for free trade be enforced. Upon economic grounds alone, every wage earner in the north has an alone, every wage earner in the north has an interest in a full and fair exercise of the bal be how the matter of cheap labor looms up as the grievance most complained of by the plutocratic section! The iron kings of the north look with frowning faces upon a region whose inexhaustible fields of iron, mined by cheap labor, make them feel the disastrous effects of competition. Only a few days ago the cotton mill owners of New England testified before a legislative committee that they could not afford to shorten the hours of labor because it was all they could do to compete with the rn mills, and they were compelled to strain every nerve to hold their own. It is the same old cry-northern capital fears that cheap labor will enable the south to get ahead, especially, now that our cheap labor is being utilized in rapidly multiplying manufacturing and mining

The real object of the force bill is to ard the prosperity of the south—it is ore of a business trick than anything And yet it is a short sighted policy. cheap labor will disappear in the of time, when our diversified inclamor for more tollers, and when me skilled workmen. On hand, if the force bill should stry and traffic in the south, blacks and millions of be driven to accept very ne or migrate northward rd to better labor markets, rkers who would not be disposed to accept the situation in a nacific mood.

Viewed from any standpoint, it is a nistake for the north to attempt to injure the business interests of the south. Our progress and prosperity will benefit every quarter of the union, settle the alleg race problem, and eliminate the old war issues from our politics. But nothing could be more dangerous than to place a dozen or more states under the ban, and attempt by hostile legislation to interfere with their local affairs, and deprive them of the right of home rule. This would be a mere sham of a republic, with onefourth of its states practically under s bayonet regime. This, however, is largely speculative. If the democracy will go into the fight with the right platform and the right leader the fate of the force bill will be settled forever, and its baleful shadow will never disturb us again.

A Valuable Decision

The decision rendered by Judge Van Epps of the city court of Atlanta in a recent case against the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia Rallway Company holding that all suits originating from causes of action which occurred outside of Fulton county must be brought in the county where such right of action accrued, is regarded with satisfaction by the people of the county.

Within the last few years a multitude of damage suits has been foisted on the courts of Fulton county, until the dockets of the courts have become so crowded that a new court had to be created, and still the condition of the dockets of all the courts demands relief. Many, perhaps a majority, of the cases are for injurie received in other counties, yet the time of the courts, court officers and jurors of Fulton county must be consumed in the determination of the issues. Citizens have complained of the resulting delay in the hearing of cases which are properly brought in the courts of Fulton county and taxpayers object to the additional and unwarranted expense they are forced to bear. The decision is so well founded on public policy and common sense that there can be but little doubt that it will stand the test of the higher courts. In the meantime the people approve and commend the action of the able and clearheaded judge who has afforded the much needed relief.

The Trouble in Alabama

Senator Morgan thoroughly understands the political situation in Alabama, and in his place in the senate Thursday he called attention to it and endeavored to impress on the democratic leaders the necessity of

As a matter of fact, there is instruction in the Alabama situation for every patriotic democrat who desires the unity and harmony of his party and who is anxious for the success of its principles and policies through which alone the people can expect to secure the relief which they are demanding.

We do not propose to suggest a remedy for the Alabama situation. The trouble seems to have reached the acute stage. There is division in the democratic party in that state, and it seems to be very serious. There seems to be two candidates for governor, and contesting dele gations will go to Chicago. For the first time since the war there is a definite and dangerous breach in the ranks of the emocratic party in a southern state.

We need not refer here to the deplorable regults that are sure to be the outcome of this situation. They have been referred to thousands of times by every democratic newspaper and orator in the south. and have been insisted on in party platforms. Why have they lost their potency in the state of Alabama in this the most mportant year the south has the days of reconstruction? Those who take an interest in this mat ter are invited to sit down calmly and think it all out. What is at the bottom of the Alabama trouble? We shall merely make a suggestion which may be taken for what it is worth. We do not believe that there is any real difference of opinion among the white people of Alabama as to the necessity of democratic harmony. Is it not possible that the whole trouble in that state comes from the arrogance of the politicians and the intolerance of ediattacks on the farmers and their leaders in our Alabama exchanges. In South Carolina the policy of intolerance led the farmers to take hold of the democratic organization, but in Alabama, the aggressive intolerance of those who are willing and anxious to drive voters out of the party on a mere question of a policy, and who seem to be determined hat there shall be no latitude of opinion among democrats, has created a danger have the reputation of controlling, the democratic party to treat differing opinions and experimental views with that large and wise toleration which is the mark of real leadership the world over. There is no telling what the outcome of the farmers' movement will be. That i goes deeper and reaches further than some of our friends profess to be aware of we have no reason to doubt: that it will be unwisely ignored by the party, there is every reason to believe. In Alabama and in some other states the democratic party has been placed in the unfortunate position of seeming to proscribe and interdict the views and opinions of the farmers, and alliancemen have been made to feel in a great many ways that the party no longer requires their sympathy and support. The result of this policy. which is neither sensible nor democratic, is the situation in Alabama and North Carolina, and the uneasy movements among the farmers in all parts of the south. The danger of this situation is not in the nature of a crisis. Unless the democratic editors have greatly underrated the strength of the Kolb faction there is no likelihood that the regular democratic organization will be defeated. The danger lies in the bitterness that will result from a heated campaign in which the lliancemen will be denounced as traitors and pursued in the high-pressure style that belongs to politics. From this bitterness the dissatisfied democrats will gather strength. The Alabama democrats cannot afford to harry the democrats who are supporting Kolb. Their votes may not be needed now, but they will be needed hereafter. Especially will they be needed in November. The wisest policy, in our opinion, not only in Alabama, but in every other southern state where there is a tendency on the part of the alliancemen and far ners to fall away from the democratic party, will be to treat them as erring friends and not as enemies or traitors. An intolerant and a proscriptive policy will add strength to the movement and widen the breach.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Secretary Foster says that Garfield's speeches, which many people have considered models of classic elegance, were rarely written out, and frequently the orator's best thoughts came to him after he had begun to speak. But before the delivery of a speech of unusual importance, it was Mr. Garfield's custom to call half a dozen friends about him, and discuss the subject fully in all its bearings. The suggestions and arguments ther advanced he would incorporate in his oration which, as completed, represented the opinion of several minds, but the form and expression one. Garfield lacked the statesm of remembering faces, and Mr. Foster says that after all his years in congress he did not know more than fifty men personally.

At the recent mass meeting of the demo was renominated for the legislature was recommended for the speakership of the house with the following complimentary resolution, introduced by Hon. J. R. Lamar and seconded by Judge H. D. D. Twiggs:

"Whereas. The name of Hon. William H. Fleming has been suggested for the office of speaker of the house of representatives, be it "Resolved, By the democracy of Richmond county in mass meeting assembled. That it cordially presents his name to that body as one eminently fitted for its highest office, by reason of his acknowledged ability and special parliamentary experience."

The oldest member of the next house representatives, in point of service, will be Hon. Martin V. Calvin, of Richmond county, who has just been nominated for his sixth consecutive term. As the democratic nomination amounts to an election, Mr. Calvin is nation amounts to an election, Mr. Calvin is sure of twelve consecutive years as member of the house from Richmond county. By reason of his long experience in the general assembly he will make one of the most valuable mem-bers of the next house, as he was of the last. An earnest worker in the committee room, a ready debater on the floor, a close student, possessing a world of information on such measures as are constantly brought to the attention of the legislature, popular with every one with whom he is thrown in contact, there is no reason why the senior mem ber from Richmond should not make a re markable impression on the next house. As chairman of the committee on banks of the present house he made a magnificent record, present house he made a magnificent record, the committee leaving the examination and amending of almost every bank charter to his experienced hands, and the house sustained every report of his committee. Mr. Calvin is notably conservative, is always found on the liberal side of questions coming before him, and his views on all measures have been listened to with interest by the house of representatives. It is doubtful if there have representatives. It is doubtful if there has ever been in the legislature a man better fitted, by ripe experience and careful study, for the work before that body than the veteran legislator from Richmond, who, yet in the prime of life, is about to begin his sixth term as a member of the house.

A citizen who is willing to be a candidate in Worth county publishes his platform in The Worth Local. It is quite a novel one, an extract being as follows:

"The writer takes this method of announcing to the people of Worth county that he is a candidate for congress in the third party nomination. My reasons for leaving the old democratic party are that it has always schemed and tried to give everybody an equal showing, by which those who worked have got richer and those who spent have got poorer, and the longest poles have knocked off all the persimmons. I now propose to give the short poles a chance. I believe that Wall street is able to feed the balance of the country and should be made to do it. The foolish sytem of every man having what he has earned and saved has become obsolete and should be abolished. I believe in creating new parties and government offices until every man in the country, who is too lazy to do anything else, can become an office holder and collect the money from Wall street to fly high on. I believe every free-holder in the country should be made to divide his land with the first poor God forsaken tramp that comes along until we all become freeholders or tramps togother. I believe every union soldler ought to be pensioned until be is able to live without work, and the confederate soldler be made to feed him. I believe the women should be allowed to vote. They govern the country now, and they ought to have the credit of it. The first thing I shall do when I get to congress will be to pass a bill making cotton worth 25 cents per pound. Next, a bill giving every man as much money as he wants, and if the government hasn't enough money for that, let them make enough paper money to

In a recent issue of The LaGrange Reporte writer signing himself "Voter," insinuated hat the call issued by the democratic execu tive committee of that county for a mass meeting on the first Tuesday in July was made for the purpose of furthering the in-terests of Mr. B. G. Swanson, prospective can-didate for congress. Chairman Bull, of the executive committee, replying to this insinua tion, says that the charge that the committee was influenced by any impure motives, or that they had the interest of Colonel Swan-was infinenced by any impure motives, or that they had the interest of Colonel Swanson or any other person in view, "is absolutely false." Chairman Bull adds:

"So far from there being any desire to injure the chances of Mr. Moses, the proposition was made to select delegates then and there who would have been done had it not been suggested that the committee for the fourth congressional district had requested that no county act before some time in July, as it was desirable to avoid any hasty action. So, the people, and not the committee, determined to postpone action, and at the time it was stated on the floor of the house that such action could not possibly do any candidate an injury: that, should Mr. Moses have no opposition, then it was useless to burden the people with an election, but that, if the people should find it deairable to have a primary, then the mass meeting could again postpone the choice of delegates and order the issue, which might be made by other gentlemen coming into the field, settled at the primary on the 29th. This proposition is yet open. The mass meeting is on the 5th, the primary on the 29th."

In a card to the voters of Troup country r. B. G. Swanson, who has been supposed be before the people as a congressional to be before the people as a congressional candidate in the fourth district, says:
"Looking over the field at this writing. I see the gathering of forces, which, under leadership and organization, will present a greater crisis to this country than has been seen for many years. Not willing to contribute anything to the division, when division means disaster, and family quarrels make breaches, where the common enemy can get in his work; to simplify matters, so far as les in my power, and remove disturbing elements, so far as I am concerned. I am perfectly willing to say I am no candidate.

"B. G. SWANSON."

Mr. John Y. Fletcher, the popular school commissioner of Irwin county, says the charge published in The Georgia Teacher that the office he holds had been turned over to him as the lowest bidder has no foundation in fact. He was chosen in the regular way according to the instruction of the state school commissioner, and any statement to the con-trary is wide of the truth.

The announcement of Dr. Y. H. Morgan as a candidate for representative in the next general assembly appears in The Hawkinsville Dispatch and News. Dr. Morgan represented Pulaski in the legislature of 1888-89 and gave is constituents entire satisfaction, in fact he was recognized as one of the ablest and mor and straightout democrat and stands for nomi nation by the democratic party of the county

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

New Candidate for Governor Suggested Third Party Men.

I talked with one of the strongest politicians connected with the third party movement in the state yeste; lay, and if what he says be true, the nedds to be at work and on the alert to avert a calamity next fall. His name we do not give, because he requests it, and if we disobey his request we will get no more news from him. "I see," said one informant, "that you newspaper men persist in saying that Post and Ellington are the leaders of the third party in Georgia. That make speeches for it, but is every man that does that a leader of the party? I think these two men will compare favorably with many of the men who speak for the democratic party and the republican

"Another thing, I see you newspaper mer have done. You have announced our ticke for governor and statehouse officers. Whave not settled that question among our selves, and I cannot see how it is possible for outsiders to be posted. One thing you may rest assured of, we will not let the two old parties have anything to do with noninating our ticket. We will put good men in, and capable men, too, and on a platform that will recognize every claim the record will make for relief and no man the record will make for relief and no man the people will make for relief, and no man will be nominated that we can have any doubts about standing on the platform and carrying out the principles of our party. One of the charges we expect to go before the country on is the deceitfulness of both the old parties, who make platforms and the old parties, who make platforms and then nominate men who openly proclaim a different line of policy. When they are elected it is perfectly natural that the platform should be ignored and the individual wishes of the successful candidate be the platform of the party. Neither one of the two political parties has paid any attention to its platforms in twenty years, in congress or the executive branch of the government.

"Take the platform printed in The Con-Take the platform printed in the constitution this morning adopted at Minneapolis by the republicans. That is a good platform except the features about a protective tariff. Every line of it will be disregarded by Harrison if he is elected and tective tariff. Every line of it will be dis-regarded by Harrison if he is elected and he will substitute his opinion for the party's whenever it suits him. The Chicago plat-form that will be made by the democrats, will be loud in its demands for relief and reform. Even the free coinage of silver will ring out in it, louder than it does in the republican platform, and they will then turn ground and pominate Cleyeland, who will ring out in it, louder than it does in the republican platform, and they will then turn around and nominate Cleveland, who has made himself solid with the money kings of the country by saying that he would veto any bill for free coinage of silver that congress should pass if he is elected pres-ident. That is what is building up the third party in this state and all aver the country."

the country."
"Will Ellington be your candidate for governor?"
"My candidate—you mean the third party candidate? No, I know he will not be nom-inated. I have heard Judge James S. Hook, of your city, mentioned in connection with this office by several of the members of the third party. Judge Hook lived in the tenth congressional district a greater part of his life, and represented us as judge the control of the co and in several important offices. His acquaintance over the state as state school commisioner will make him as strong over the state as he will be in the tenth. His views on financial questions have been in harmony with our party for fifteen or twenty years. He is an eloquent, upright man and the equal of any man on the stump in the state."

"Why don't you nominate Watson for governor?"

"Because we want to nominate him fo "Because we want to nominate him for congress in the tenth again, and he will be elected all the same—Black or no Black. The firm began in a business way by sending an expert, Mr. Spencer, over the lines to examine the whole property. How much more sensibly the bankers can go about the work of reorganization. They will know the physical condition of the properties, what they need, what the country through which they run is likely to afford in the way of revenue and with the floating indebtedness they will have the elements to figure the securities down on.

"The proposed Southern Railway Company, soundly established, would be a magnificent factor in the prosperity of the south." Mr. Spencer spoke truly when he said a great railroad system well supplied with money and credit is a benefit to the country it serves, but if it is in bad financial condition it has to drain its territory.

"I believe that large investments in other directions through the south would follow the reorganization of the Terminal by Drexel, Morgan & Co. He will tell you about it."

"What's the objection to the present name?" asked The Constitution of Mr. Graves.

"It is totally unsuited in its associations to the plan and purpose of the town or to the mission of our community," said the new investor in Manchester lots. "It carries with it a suggestion totally antagonistic to the theory on which our enterprise was planted or to the line on which we propose to develop an ideal and classic community. Manchester is inseparably connected with smokestacks and spindles and whirring looms. It breathes of factories and trade."
"Well, these are very practical and pop-

"Well, these are very practical and popular suggestions," baid the scribe.
"And so they are," was the reply, "but not for the community we are about to establish. Ours is pre-eminently a place of schools. There isn't a manufactory contemplated in the plan of its future. We are building a town that revolves entirely around the idea of superior educational advantages. With our great female college already assured, a notable male institute practically certain and an institute rege aiready assured, a notable male in-stitute practically certain and an institu-tion greater than both, which is logically looming in that direction, we intend and expect to erect an educational center un-surpassed in the south or in the country— a standard seat of learning, a center of recognized culture, and naturally in time a community as ideal and classic as Concord or Cambridge, or Oxford on the Thames. Of course a town like this should have

Or course a town like this should have a name, convenient to the tongue, suited to its mission, and as far as possible indicative of the ideas embodied in its conception. That is the name we must have."

"What are some of the names under discussion?" asked The Constitution.

"Well, they are legion, and in the main ansatisfactory. Some have suggested University Place," but that is too long and suggests the well-known square in New men killed. een men and suggests the well-known square in New York which has not a university on it. Be York which has not a university on it. Besides that name would break a milroad brakeman's jawbone. He would never call it intelligibly. "The Colleges' is another suggestion, which is open to the same objection as to length, and is indicative simply of the schools, with no suggestion of the classic community which is to surround the colleges. 'Southwest Atlanta' has been suggested, but beyond the view which locates it as a part of this city, the title carries no sort of individuality, and simply bears a geographical relation to Kennedy street wit WIII Haney.

the title carries no sort of individuality, and simply bears a geographical relation to the capital of Georgia. The present name is altogether unsatisfactory to the entire company and will inevitably be changed. The general desire just now is to secure a name to fit the place, a short name that will describe it in a word, easy to speak and significant of the plan—something to fit the community like Atlanta fits the town. Do you know the name Atlanta was little short of inspiration. The name has had no small part in the south and the growth and the glory of the south's metropolis. There is everything in a name, and with a nobly planued community we are in search of a good name. We wish to substitute for Manchester some word that will flow as easily and mean as much to us as Atlauta."

"Don't you think it will be impossible to find such a name?"
"On the contrary I think we have airendy found it. I was just discussing it with Colonel Blalock." "What is the name

"What is the name you like?"
"Attica!"
"Attica," said Mr. Graves, with enthusiasm, "fills the need of the hour. The word," said he, "fairly ripples with the suggestion of culture. It breathes of Athens and classic Greece—of art, science and refinement. Attica was the aggregate name for the territory of enlightenment. The ens and classic Greece—of art, science and refinement. Attica was the aggregate name for the territory of enlightenment. The name carries with it every suggestion that adapts it to the plan of our community, and every idea that fits it to the future of a remarkable suburb. Then, too, it runs as trippingly on the tongue as Atlanta itself, and is so like it as to seem akin. A short, stirring, striking word that is as much an inspiration as Atlanta was some fifty years ago—and mark the prophecy, unless all logical plans and prospects fail, it will become as inseparable from the idea of southern culture as Atlanta is linked to southern progress and prosperity?"

"Have the Manchester people decided, then, to change the name to Attica?"

"Not as yet. The directors are discussing it. We wish the public would help us to decide. Please say for us in The Constitution that we would be glad of suggestions on this point from the public, whether they are interested in Manchester on to. loochee line now starts from Gray street at Jones avenue and we blocks away turns to the south into lemedy. Kennedy is a new street and until a short while ago there was a big rashout in it at the foot of the hill. That ill is about 700 feet long and has a fall of fifty or sixty feet within that distance. Then from the lowest point it begins ding again and continues until 600 700 feet away a tableland, giving a lificent view of Atlanta is reached.

Just at the lowest point of that grade is be old washout which has been filled up. on the left of the track the fill is some wenty feet and it is quite steen, while a the right it is not near so high and clickly disappears into a cut on the very large of the up grade.

Whether the train came down that cary incline at a reckless speed or at a ate one it was passing a dangerous point the road and the utmost caution seemd necessary to prevent an accident at

The old engine had no airbrakes and the two cars in front of it were equipped with only the brake such cars are supplied with when turned out of the shop. Just before the bottom of the grade reached the car in front began rockup and down. As the front end went the rear end went down and this me so violent that many of the pasers grabbed the backs of the seats in t of them to steady themselves. finally the front end appeared to go highthan ever and when it came down the cucks went bumping over the crossties. It was all over in less than a minute The crash, followed almost instantly by the groans of the wounded and the cries of those who escaped, was heard by hundreds living on the hillsides and hilltops around. At the hour only women were at home, but in less than a minute after the engine came to a standstill the hillsides were covered with women and children flying to the scene.

The scene was too much for them and the few men who had escaped death were soon burdened with fainting women as well as wounded men.

The car which had gone down the embankment rested flat upon the earth with dead and wounded under it. The top had been torn entirely away and seats were picked up fifty feet away. The other car had not been half so badly demolished.

Those who were able to do anything quickly gave their attention to those under the car. Two dead men and several hurt were taken out, the dead being removed to Mr. Nance's yard near by while the wounded were carried into his house to receive such attention as could be rendered until physicians arrived. Then when the last wounded person had been cared for it was found that:

Within the last few years modern improvements have crowded "Ajax" out. and it has been used as a shifter in the yards here. A month ago it was leased way Company to haul freight over that line. The rusty-looking old rattletrap, a curiosity, an ante-bellum relic in its line, was viewed with interest as it laboriously puffed its way over the line on the occas ional trips that were necessary to carry the freight over the road.

Sunday the lightning burned out the dynamo of the river line, and besides causing several thousand dollars loss to the company, disabled the electric apparatus and the road in such a way that the use of electricity was made impossible until the machinery could be sent north and repaired. This caused a long and expensive delay, especially as the season was ripe for heavy travel to the river, and as the road was just getting on its feet.

The management of the road decided to temporarily supply the deficiency caus ed by the lightning's work, with the old

At a quarter to 2 o'clock Conductor Boring glanced at his watch and cried, "All aboard." The rusty old bell on the Ajax clanged discordantly, there was a sudden jerk, loud puffings from the old, wornout engine and the train was off.

From Jones avenue a slight downgrade toward the west soon had the train spin-ning along at a lively rate, and the passengers sat back with their hats off, enjoying the balmy June breezes that floated through

The men were going a-fishing on the Chattahoochee. The summer afternoon was so pleasant, the sun was shining so genially, that the three men, who had met up town during the morning, had decided to try their luck with the hook and line on the

It Was Running Fast.

A question that was much discussed was the speed of the train at the time of the accident. About this there are many conflicting statements.

Engineer Hiney, who was running the engine, stated that the engine was running at the usual rate of speed at the time of the the usual rate of speed at the time of the wreck. He didn't think he was running above ten miles an hour. He seemed badly perturbed at the wreck.

Others say the train was running at the rate of forty-five miles an hour.

A Mr. Carr, who was one of the first to reach the scene of the wreck, said:

"I've seen lots of trains running, and if I know anything about speed, that train was running at least forty-five miles an hour."

An old negro declared:

"Gosh! but warn't dat train a-flyin?" I heard it comin' down dat hill way ober to Ma'etta street."

Nearly all agreed that the train was running at a very rapid rate.

The Railroad.

The Atlanta and Chattahoochee river road was begun in July, '91, and cars began running about four weeks ago.

"I'm satisfied," he said last night, "that there was no reckless running. I have always been careful about the men I hire and Haney is said to be one of the best and safest engineers in the country.

A sad scene it was as the dead were moved away.

Upon one of the seats of the broken car the body of Mr. Allen was laid and then a dozen men bore it up the hill to the weeping, heart-broken wife.

Dr. Auten was placed in an undertaker's wagon and beside his body was a coffin containing the remains of Davis.

These were taken to Patterson's undertaking rooms to await the coroner.

Davis was horribly mutilated. Only a small piece of his face was left which all of his head except that was gone. He was almost torn to pieces and pieces were picked up twenty feet away.

The Inquest.

The Inquest. Coroner Davis empaneled a jury of in-quest and the bodies were received. The jury then adjourned to meet this morning when the testimony will be received. It Was Better So.

Had the accident occurred a day earlier there is no telling what the end would have been.
On hursday there was a picnic at the river and hundrdeds of children were out. The road, however, handled the little ones with great care and without an accident of any kind. As soon as the wreck was over and while

A sad scene was that witnessed at the residence of Dr. Auten, No. 253 Marietta street. On the portice a number of friends, who desired to render what they could to the grief-stricken family, were seated, discussing in a subdued tone the terrible accident. Rev. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange. YORK, June 10.-The stock marke was generally dull, but as usual of late, was active in spots, while the movements in a few stocks which were influenced by a ecial cause comprised all there was of im-rance in dealings. Two or three stocks held their own and improved slightly, but the general market fell off gradually. J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The European market was a buyer at the opening, but the trading amounted to very little. St. Paul was remarkably strong and advaffeed to 79 5-8. The great trouble is that everybody had the point to buy this stock and they were shaken out in the last hour above 98c. A good deal long Chicago, Burlington and Quincy was again marketed, but below that figure very little long stock came out. The Cammack party, were after this stock all day and made it look very weak. The market remains very dull, but the bear party are very active. They keep at work all the time and buy stocks and then resell them at low prices. Today, for instance, the main broker for the bears got 1,000 shares Chicago, Barlington and Quincy stock at 96 7-8 and 97. Then the same party gave an order to a regular commission broker to sell the 1 600 shares co and Quincy stock at 96 7-8 and 97. Then the same party gave an order to a regular commission broker to sell the 1,000 shares so as to make it appear as if long stock was coming out. The brokers paid more attention to the reports from the convention than to the market. If Mr. Blaine or Mr. Harrison, is nominated it will not affect prices, but if Mr. McKinley is nominated it would bring a good many selling orders from the other side, as his ideas of protection are not popular in Europe. The government crop report will come out this evening and this ought to have an effect on tomorrow's speculation. We think that at the present prices there is more money to be made on the bull side than on the bear side of this market and therefore advise purchases on every reaction.

NEW YORK, June 10-Today has been an exciting one in the cotton market. Early cables advised an advance of 3-64d there. Part of this had been lost before the close, however, and spot sales were only 5,000 bales. This was thought hardly a fair response to the stability shown by the New York market yesterday, but under the influence of more hopeful dispatches from Washington with regard to the anti-option bill, opening prices here were from 364 points higher than last night. Shortly after 10 o'clock a decline set in which by 12 o'clock had carried prices back 11@11 points. It was assisted by news of warmer weather in the south and a published interview with Senator Paddock at Washington in which he said that it was generally conceded that the anti-option bill would pass should it come to a direct vote in the senate. The fight that will be made over it will be in connection with reference to the senatorial committees. The government report indicates a reduction in acreage of 16½ per cent as compared with last year, while the condition of the crop is reported at 35.5, against 85.7 last year. The acreage reported last year, as compared with the previous year, was 97.7, and upon the first reading of the report it appeared that this year's acreage was in comparison with last year's estimated acreage rather than with the actual area which ultimately proved to be under oultivation. At first therefore it was assumed that the report indicated 14 per cent decrease in acreage, but a more careful perusal points to the conclusion that the indicated decrease is 16.5. It seffect upon the market was instantaneous, and an extreme advance of 15 points immediately followed its publication, a portion of which, however, was subsequently lost. During the afternoon, as the excitement following the publication of the bureau report subsided somewhat, the market eased away. Just before the Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. ing the publication of the bureau report subsided somewhat, the market eased away. Just before the close a rumor that a prominent New Orleans authority would tomorrow issue a very bullish resume of the rop situation steadied prices somewhat and final potations were from 3@4 points better than yesterday.

Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter.

By Private Wirs to A. P. Youngblood.

NEW YORK, June 10 - Liverpool this morning came but slightly better at the opening and at no time was more than 2-64d over yesterday's closing, which was thought would prove quite a disappointment. The market, however opened, regardless of this, at about 3 points over the official quotations of last night. Immediately after, however, there were further advices from Washington in regard to the Hatch bill, and this, nonnection with the uncertainty as to the bureau report, brought about renewed demoralization, under which prices quickly sold off nearly 10 points from the opening. After the bureau was read showing an approximate decrease of about 16% per cent in the acreage and a lower crop condition than had been expected, the market became excited, and in less than a minute the first brades were fully 10 points above the previous quotations, which of course preceded the report. After the first business had been done the old feeling of nervousness consequent upon affairs in Washington returned, and on considerable aggressiveness on the part of the bears the market has broken 667 points from best. Near the close, however, some good buying for southern account, more particularly New Orleans, has again helped, a slight preparent and the close is a search below a search below as search below as a search below as a search below as search below as a sea southern account, more particularly New Orleans, has again helped a slight recovery, and the close is at without being protected by stop loss orders. The outlook for corn is improving very rapidly. Farmers are liberal sellers when they can spare the time from their work. Buyers for foreign and domestic account have been well supplied for their immediate wants. We see nothing to encourage speculative buying at present prices. On the contrary, we think July corn will be offered freely at 45 cents per bushel in the near future. The hog product was again fine and prices higher. The demand for lard and ribs continues. Speculators are still buying mess pork.

Then Atlanta couldn't hit Behne at all meesfully. Atlanta scored two runs in the second by errors by Weikart, Stickney and Meara. In the third they earned a run on Long's hit, his great base running, all hits by Hill and Prescott.

There were a number of brilliant plays the game. Prescott made two brilliant athes, McIntyre made one of the same rebr and another assisted in a pretty while play. NOW READY FOR THE CAMP. The Last Drill of the Fourth Battalion at

The Fourth battalion drilled last night for the last time at Brisbine park and the boys are now ready to go into camp. A large crowd was out to see the drill and to hear the concert by the band. It was estimated that nearly two thousand people were present, seated in the grand stand and scattered over the grounds.

The drill lasted for about two hours and the grand the grand the grand that grand the grand the grand the grand that grand the grand the grand that gr by the applause with which they greeted the different movements was very great.

Each of the four companies was out with a full complement of men.and the number of individual soldiers that drilled last night was given the perhaps larger than at any time since the drilling commenced.

The programme of the drill was carried perhaps larger than at any time since the drilling commenced.

The programme of the drill was carried out as printed in yesterday's Constitution.

After the drill was over, the crowd was entertained with a delightful concert by the band. Several beautiful pieces were played and the strains of music were prolonged until quite a late hour.

The battalion goes into camp next Tuesday morning and Mr. Charles L. Rodgers has been appointed the color bearer.

Colonel Calhoun deserves to be congratulated for the excellent manner in which he has trained the battalion for entering Camp Northen and it goes without saying that they will do honor to their commander after they get into camp.

THE "CHIMES" LAST NIGHT. The second performance of "The Chimes of Normandy" was given most acceptably last evening by the Atlanta Opera Club to a crowdevening by the Atlanta Opera Club to a crowded house. Everything went off as smoothly as the performances given here by the Deshon company. The chorus was especially fine last evening, and the manner in which they sang the beautiful music was loudly and heartily applauded. The whole performance, in fact, surpassed the expectations of the management and they are greatly gratified at the splendid and clear-cut manner in which this charming opera was sung. If there was a single person who seemed afflicted with stage fright, it was opera was sung. If there was a single person who seemed afflicted with stage fright, it was not perceptible, and it appeared that each participant threw his or her whole soul into the work. And the result was highly satisfactory. Of the cast, several names deserve especial mention, among them the notary of Mr. Fred Miles. He is rich, rare and racy, and at all times original. He will sing several original songs today, besides many local allusions that he promises to get off especially for the matinee performance. Miss Jones and Mrs. Dowling were very warmly received, as were Mr. King, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Wood. Mrs. Jackson and Miss May Kenney were in elegant voice and displayed great intelligence in their solos. The dancing of Misses Mary Lou Jackson and Gypsie and Bessie Morris was a charming feature of the evening's entertainment. In conclusion, it is perfectly admissable to say that Director Simpson and Leader Mayer are to be congratulated upon the manner in which they conduct the orchestration of "The Chimes."

A special matinee will be given this afternoon. The last performance occurs tonight, and it is safe to state large houses will greet the final productions. Popular prices prevail.

Gets a Pitcher Broken Over His

BY AN INJURED AND ENRAGED HUSBAND

Sequel to a Very Sensational Scene. Other Interesting News.

A bruised head, four broken hearts and wo' divided homes is the result of the policeman's ball game of Thursday after-

A broken pitcher and an exciting scene may also be charged up to that memorable contest on the diamond.

And the results are still coming in. Vhat else will follow heaven only knows. If the same mischievous spirit of discord continues to prevail the public need not be surprised at anything.

There's a moral in the story that is quite striking and of general application.

Origin of the Trouble.

Mr. J. A. Van Winkle, a lawyer, is a lover of all field sports, and when the police accepted a challenge to play the lawyers a match game of ball, Mr. Van Winkle, was a match game of ball, and the lawyers are seen of the first level lights. Winkle was one of the first legal lights who volunteered to enter the contest. If he had foreseen the outcome of the game the lawyer would, no doubt, have refrained from lending his presence to the Thursday afternoon, when the voice of he umpire called out "play ball," Mr. Van Winkle trotted nimbly to his place. Before taking his place Mr. Van Winkle divested himself of his collar and cuffs, and deposited them with a very pretty lady who occupied a seat in the audience.

Often he cast smiles and glances in the direction of the lady, and inspired by her presence, he played ball like a good boy.

At every good play he got a smile from the grandstand.

Licked 'Em Both. While the lawyers were at the bat in the eighth inning, Mr. Van Winkle went up to the grandstand and sat down by the lady who had been smiling at him.

He had been sitting there but a few moments, when a lady, wearing a look of wrath and carrying an umbrelia, appeared.

Facing her husband, who was pleasantly chatting with Mrs. H. Gudemuth, for sun was the lady's name, Mrs. Van Winkle angrily demanded what they were doing there together.

Without waiting for reply, she drew her umbrella and came down on Mrs. Gudemuth with all her might.

As told in yesterday's Constitution, she gave both her husband and Mrs. Gudemuth the state of the stat severe chastising with her umbrella, and inally she had to be stopped by Chief Connolly.

Mrs. Van Winkle's wrath waxed warm and it increased as night came on. The gay husband feared another attack and he failed to return home Thursday night.

Licked Again. Mrs. Gudemuth, the lady who figured in the sensational scene at the ball game, is a very pretty woman, with a charming figa very pretty woman, with a charming ngure and entrancing eyes.

She is the wife of Mr. Henry Gudemuth. a traveling salesman for Liebeman & Kaufman, the trunk men. Mr. Gudemuth is a nice looking gentleman of about thirty years. He lives with his wife in a neat home at 45 Logan street. They have no children.

Mr. Gudemuth has been out of the city on the road all this week and it was thought that he would not return until tonight. By some change in his itherary, however, Mr. Gudemuth turned up in the city early yesterday morning on an early train. Whistling a merry tune, he walked out to his home, reaching there about 7 o'clock. He opened the door and stepping into the hall sat down his grip.

He then opened the parlor door and looked in.

He was paralyzed-overcome with aston-Ishment. Perhaps astounded is the word.
He took in the situation by gazing steadily upon it for a full minute.
His wife was also in the parlor, with the

His wife was also in the parlor, with the gay and festive lawyer.

After looking at the pair a minute Mr. Gudemuth grabbed the first weapon that presented itself—a water pitcher—and made a leap at Van Winkle. Three or four well directed blows shivered the pitcher into atoms, and put some ugly marks on the wayward lawyer's head.

Every lick brought blood from Van Winkle, and left a wound. He offered no resistance, but at the first opportunity he ran out the door and into the yard.

out the door and into the yard.
Gudemuth followed him into the hall, and saw the unfortunate limb of the law meander into the yard clad in his nether garments.

With teers in her eyes Mrs. Gudemuth pleaded with her husband to allow Van Winkle to return to the house and put on his missing garments. To this Mr. Gudemuth finally consented, and the lawyer returned, very much crestfallen, and resumed his robes.

Then hastily he betook himself to the whenceness of some where.

The Injured Husband.

An hour later Mr. Gudemuth called at Chief Connolly's office and reported the entire affair. entire affair.

Cases were entered against both Gudemuth and Van Winkle, the charges being disorderly conduct. The same charge was entered against Mrs. Van Winkle and Mrs. Gudemuth, on account of the park fight.

The two ladies appeared in police court yesterday afternoon and were fined $1 and costs each. yesterday afternoon and were mied which costs each.

Mr. Van Winkle and Mr. Gudemuth will be tried Monday.

Mrs. Van Winkle is several years older than her husband, and was a wealthy widow when she married the lawyer. She says that she took the lawyer up when he was a penniless book agent, sent him to law school—and this is the gratitude she receives!

THE NEWS FROM MACON. A Notable Fight Against a New England Mortgage Company.

Mortgage Company.

Macon, Ga., June 10.—(Special.)—The intervention of W. B. Sparks in the Tarver litigation came up this morning in the United States court. The main issue in this case of Tarver against the New England Mortgage and Security Company, in which a vast quantity of land is at stake, is well known to the readers of The Constitution. W. B. Sparks comes in with a small claim on a mortgage for $2,000. He is represented by Mr. Lloyd Moore. Mr. Marion Erwin and Mr. W. E. Simmons, of Gwinett, represented the Union Real Estate Trust Company and the New England Mortgage and Security Company. Mr. John Walter Robinson and Judge Warren Nottingham represent Mrs. Annie P. Tarver and Mr. Nunter Wimberley represents Mr. H. D. Wimberley, the original owner of a large amount of this land. The case will probably occupy some time.

The Lanier House Case.

The Lanier House Case. The famous case of the Lanier House Company against J. S. Stewart was settled in open court this morning and a consent verdict for $1,250 was given to the plaintiffs.

A Preacher Arrested.

Eli Smith, a Tybee pastor of somber hue, will have to answer to a warrant issued by Justice Carlos this morning charging him with marrying a couple without a ing him with marrying a couple without a license. The warrant was sworn out by Sophy Hunt, the bride who was wooed and won and wedded in good faith by Eph Williams. The knot was tied by the reverend Eli, who was also sufficiently accommodating to do the grand act on credit. After a reasonable time he went and demanded his fee, but it was not forthcoming. Again and again he made the demand until at length, exasperated, he informed the bride that her marriage was null and void, no license having been issued. He little thought that his spiteful, but truthful, information would probably cost him a term in the penitentiary.

Willie Bell in Danger.

Willie Bell, the youthful murderer who now lies in Bibb jail, has come to some slight sense of his position. The negroes with whom he is confined, have evidently been indulging in the refinement of cruelty and have filled the boy's brain with the imaginary torture and horror of a public hanging, perhaps of a lynching. This morning he eagerly asks the visitors to the cell if indeed it "hurts much to get hung," and evidently fully understands that hang he must.

The grand jury will meet on Tuesday next and will then find a true bill against Willie Bell. After that the trial will begin at once, and it is understood that as a plea of guilty will be entered, sentence will be passed at an early date.

The defendants were represented by John Gary Evans, of Alken, and the state by Assistant Attorney General Townsend. There were six cases against Lipfield and Schiller each, and five each against Butler and Shinall. The trial ended this afternoon. The result was that the cases against Shinall and Butler were dismissed. Lipfield and Schiller were bound over to the county court under a two-hundred-dollar bond in each ease. Witnesses against Schiller and Lipfield were Detectives Harden and Halloway, of Columbia, who testified that they visited these places and got drinks for money on the Sabbath.

It Is a Genuine Treat.

We mean Hoyt's Jersey butter, beyond all doubt the best butter ever brought to Atlauta; uniformity in grade, richness of flavor, absolute purity, are its qualities. It is all bought from one dairy, situated in the blue grass country, and hence always uniform, always of that fine rich color and flavor which blue grass alone imparts to fine Jersey butter. As soon as we receive it we put it in a refrigerator and it is delivered to your house in an ice box. Now, isn't it a treat to have no more poor butter, no more stale butter, no more passed and the same high grade Jersey? We are furnishing that quality of butter every day, and can supply you. Ask any of our many pleased customers about our butter and then, take their advice and come and do likewise, and the butter problem will trouble you no longer.

Another treat is our Rijamo coffee. We call it a treat because we mean it, for nothing is more exhilarating and enjoyable than a cup of fine coffee, and our Rijamo is the highest grade coffee that can be found. It is a combination of Mandeling Java, Mocha and Maracaibo, and the blend gives a coffee of fine aroma and of elegant flavor. It is always sold at 35 cents, cheaper than you can buy a lower grade elsewhere.

We also propose to offer to our customers some big bargains. How is salmon at 15 cents per can? That is the price it will go at for the next week; also, fine brook trout at 15 cents, fine imported herring at 15 cents, canned mackerel at 15 cents, Sunbeam corn at 15 cents a can each. Isn't that cheap enough?

Our low price on blackberry jam will hold good until all is sold. Full quart jars of homemake pure and best quality of blackberry jam at 60 cents. We expect you are about out of all of your own, so come and get some, which is just as good and about as cheap as you can make it.

is just as good and about as cheap as you can make it.

Our fresh stock of imported biscuits and crackers came yesterday. We have them both by the pound and in one-pound boxes. Come around and test them. At the same time we received a fresh stock of prunes, figs, currants and evaporated apples, apricots and peaches. At this season nothing has ever been brought to Atlanta as fine as our new prunes. The apples, apricots and peaches are also as fine in quality as can be cured.

TO BE USED AGAINST MAJOR BLACK.

Mr. James Barrett Comes to Atlanta Look Up Major J. C. C. Black's Becord for the Third Party.

The bond question will once more be come an issue in Georgia politics, if the in

Mr. James Barrett, of Augusta, came to Atlanta yesterday in the interest of the third party in the tenth district, and proceeded to look up Major J. C. C. Black's record in the legislature.

It is understood that the particular part of Major Black's official record which in-terests the third party is his position on the bill to pay the "Branch bonds." These were a portion of one issue of Georgia bonds in connection with the Macon and Brunswick railroad. It seems that Gover-nor Jenkins and Alexander Stephens advised Mr. Thomas Branch that these particular bonds were legally issued and valid, and upon that advice Mr. Branch bought some of the bonds. In 1877 a bill was issued in the legislature which provided for the payment of this issue of bonds. It was supported by a number of prominent men, who did not hesitate to say that the bonds were valid and ought to be paid. Among the number were Hon. Patrick Walsh and Major Black. Major Black was so firmly convinced that the bonds ought to be paid that he boldly championed the bill and worked actively for its passage. The bill was lost, however, and the Branch bonds were among those repudiated by the state. The fact that Mr. Barrett is looking up this record is taken as an indication that it will be used against the democratic nominee by Tom Watson and his friends. It is thought by some that this will start anew the discussion over the validity of certain issues of the repudiated bonds. Some of the most prominent men in the state were of the opinion that some of the repudiated bonds ought to be paid, and in the constitutional convention of 1877 Governor Jenkins, who presided over that distinguished body, left the chair to make a speech advocating the payment of certain issues of the bonds afterward repudiated. Among them was this issue of Macon and Brunswick bonds, which Major Black had contended should be paid. It is said by those present that Governor Jenkins made a strong argument, but when the vote was taken only five others voted with Jenkins. Of couse Major Black will stand on his record, and will, no doubt, argue in this campaign as he did in the legislature that the Macon and Brunswick bonds ought to be paid. If so, the discussion will go farther than the tenth district, for the people all over the state have always manifested a lively interest whenever the validity of any part of the repudiated bonds is argued. For years no one has had the temerity to argue before the people the payment of any portion of the repudiated bonds is argued. For years no one has had the temerity to argue before the people the payment of any part of the repudiated bonds is argued. For years no one has had th some of the bonds. In 1877 a bill was is-sued in the legislature which provided for Judge Henderson on the Warpath. There was another man looking up records at the capitol yesterday. It was Judge Henderson, and he was looking up the record of the department of agriculture. He went to the department and asked to see certain documents, and then went to the executive office. It is said that the judge is making a very quiet but a very vigorous campaign against Commissioner Nesbitt.

Colonel Nesbitt is at present confined to is home in Cobb county by sickness.

Weak Women. Weak Women.

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those numerous ills which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has received most gratifying praise for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it was only misery. It strengthens the nerves, cures sick headache and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

Indian Springs, Ga., June 10.-(Special.) A reception was tendered the ladies of the Press Club last evening, given by Mr. Collier, of the Wigwam. This took place in the ballroom, which, on all occas been used for meetings of the club The first part of the programme was literary and musical. Those who took part were: Miss Nora Sheehan, Miss Corinne Stocker, Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, Miss Bessie DeBelle, Miss Gusie Wylie (the youngest member of the club), Mrs. M. L. with, an informal reception was held, at which the visitors were introduced to the club members. The reception was one of the most delightful features of the convention, and was highly enjoyed by all.

The Election of Officers. This morning the society was called t session. An election of officers took place which resulted unanimously in the retion of Mrs. Byington, president; Mrs. Wylie, vice president; Miss Quinn, secretary and treasurer. Several business questions were then discussed, followed by a most interesting feature—each member reading a short sketch of her newspape and literary work, and causes leading thereto. Papers of two absent member were read, and Miss Nora Sheehan was to have read an article on "Some Women of the Press in New York," but through some misunderstanding, the paper was not pre-pared. During the latter part of the pro-gramme the hall was filled with guests, as the club, through the president, had extended an invitation to all interested in literary work to be present. In an inter-mission of the programme refreshments were sent in by Mr. Collier in compliment to the Press Club and guests.

The Business Session Resumed. At 10 o'clock the business session was again resumed, executive and investigating committees being appointed. Then followed resolutions of thanks to the proprietors of the Wigwam, Elder, Bryant, Varner, Alexander and Calumet hotels. This wound up the business affairs of the organization, and, after an apropos address of the president, the society adjourned to meet again June 8, 1893. In the afternoon, by special invitation. In the afternoon, by special invitation, the members took a drive to High Falls, nine miles distant, Collier and Elder.

Another Reception This evening a reception was given at the Elder house, than which no affair preceding was more enjoyable. A large crowd was in attendance, and the ballroom, crowd was in attendance, and the ballroom, verandas and lawns were filled with guests. A splendid band of music was in attendance, and nothing to further the entertainment of the guests was left undone. At 11 o'clock refreshments were served, at the close of which Mr. D. J. Thaxton, of The Middle Georgia Argus, in a few well-chosen words and in behalf of the citizens of Flovilla, Jackson and Indian Springs, tendered an address of farewell to the Woman's Press Club, with the closing remarks that he hoped the club would make an annual event of convening at Indian Springs.

Most of the ladies will leave in the morning; the rest will go later in the day. One

WORLD WITHOUT END. TEACHERS

They Will Have to Get a Warehouse to Hold Them All—A Grand Convention of Southern Educators.

It is a cold, bleak day in summertime when Atlanta fails to catch the biggest conventions of the year. This year the Gate City of the South has had her full share of these conventions with the international congress of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the southern Baptists, the National Fruit Growers, the Scotch-Irish and a half-dozen other conventions of note. But, now comes the most notable, per haps, of them all if attendance and im portant business count for aught. The Southern Educational Society and the Georgia Teachers' Association will com-bine to hold their annual conventions in Atlanta beginning on July 4th and lasting through the following week or ten days. There are in the Georgia Teachers' Association 2,000 teachers who have express ed their purpose to come to the Atlanta convention. There will be about a thou-sand teachers from adjoining southern states here, saying nothing of the hundreds of visitors and friends of higher education who will flock here from all over Dixie to attend the Southern Educational Society's

Last year the southern educators met on Lookout mountain near Chattanooga.

It was a grand convention and the s ciety has grown twice as large since that time. At the meeting this year there will be, perhaps, fully two or three thousand members here.

The various committees on entertainme having received their instructions from the local executive committee at a meeting held the day before, went to work yesterday in dead earnest to prepare for the approaching convention. The committee on halls and place of meeting will perhaps endeavor to secure some of the large warehouses, since the opera house has been engaged by the Deshon Opera Company. The subcommittee on hotels and boarding houses is making a thorough search for all houses is making a thorough search for an places where the delegates and visitors can be entertained. They request all hotels and boarding houses of the city to send in their names at once to Secretary Robert Gwinn, at the capitol, giving the number of guests they are able to take and at what price. The Georgia Teachers.

The Georgia Teachers.

Professor Euler B. Smith, of LaGrange, president of the Georgia Teachers' Association, was in Atlanta yesterday.

"The Georgia teachers will meet in the hall of representatives in advance of the Southern Educational Society's convention July 4th, and all of their regular sessions will be held there," said Professor Smith.

"All the local committees will have headquarters in the statchouse where they will give every possible care and attention to the comfort, convenience, information and pleasure of visiting members.

"The department meetings will be held "The department meetings will be held in the Girls' High school building.

As to Membership. "It may be of interest to the teachers of Georgia to know who are eligible to membership in the association," contined Professor Smith. "All teachers and friends of education are invited to become members of the Georgia Teachers' Association. The annual membership fee is $1. Only members of the association will be entitled to reduced rates at hotels and boarding places and must present their membership ticket when they settle their bills. The treasurer will open an office at the capitol where he will issue certificates of membership. The council of education will hold its executive headquarters at the Kimball house.

As to Hotel Rates. As to Hotel Rates

"As to hotel rates, the following have been granted: Kimball house, 20 per cent off regular rates; Markham house, $2 per day; boarding houses, $1 per day.

THE STATE FAIR.

Colonel J. O. Waddell Is Elated at the Pros

The state fair to be held at Macon this year promises to be a grand success in every particular, and Colonel J. O. Waddell, president of the State Agricultural Society, who has just returned from a trip over the state, is more than rejoiced at the over the state, is more than rejoiced at the prospect.

"Many counties have already signified their purpose to be represented," said he, "and the fact is made plain that we are going to have more exhibits than space for them.

"Not a single obstruction is in the way of the committee on arrangements, and we have already fixed the premiums for the premium list, which will be published in the near future.

"The people all over Georgia are talking most enthusiastically already for the success of the fair, and I am much disposed to remark that it will be the very finest fair the society has ever given. Why shouldn't it be?"
